THE DESCENDANTS OF ELDER WILLIAM BREWSTER WHOSE INTEREST IN THEIR FAMILY HISTORY HAS BEEN AN INCENTIVE TO THE PRODUCTION OF THIS WORK

"It is wise for us to recur to the history of our ancestors. Those who do not look upon themselves as a link, connecting the past with the future, do not perform their duty to the world."—DANIEL WEBSTER.

"To let the memory of these men die is injurious to posterity, by depriving them of what might contribute to promote their steadiness to their principles under hardships and severities."—REV. E. CALAMY, D.D.

"Let us gather up the traditions which still exist; let us show the world, that if we are not called to follow the example of our fathers, we are at least not insensible to the worth of their characters; not indifferent to the sacrifices and trials, by which they purchased our prosperity."—EDWARD EVERETT.

PREFACE

The late Lot Edward Brewster, of Cincinnati, Ohio, a native of Lebanon, Connecticut, and a member of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society of Boston, Massachusetts, for several years collected data for a Brewster genealogy, but his work ceased in 1847 and was not published. After his death, in 1849, his manuscript passed into the keeping of another branch of the Brewster family.

His granddaughter, the compiler of this publication, had for many years in her possession the original rough draft of his work—an outline—to which she added from time to time the data she obtained from various sources. She learned that her grandfather had left a later manuscript genealogy and, after years of search for it, she was placed in correspondence with Mr. Charles Ellis Brewster, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, who proved to be in possession of this last manuscript and who kindly presented it to her. It was evident, however, that while this later, but small, genealogy embodied important information, its publication in the condition in which Mr. L. E. Brewster left it would be far from satisfactory; for he had been unable to trace the descendants of numerous branches of the family, and the arrangement was not as works of this character are now presented. It was necessary, therefore, to edit his manuscript and complete and verify the records as far as possible, for which the compiler obtained from town clerks and others certified copies of the vital records relating to the early generations.

The descendants of Elder William Brewster were invited through letters, circulars, notices in magazines and journals, and other mediums, to furnish their family records, and printed blanks for these records were supplied. Although the responses were numerous, there are many incomplete records and possibly these partial ones are inaccurate, owing to the silence of those who could have contributed complete and correct data.

A request was made that the authority accompany the records furnished, and many in the late generations are copies from church and probate records, Bible records, gravestone inscriptions, diaries, charts, family letters and papers, personal recollections of those who communicated the information, and published records. The compiler has constantly guarded against errors, although she has not hoped to escape them entirely nor to complete this genealogy, for that, in a work of this extent, is impossible.

The work contains the records of eleven generations of descendants of Elder William Brewster, through four of his grandsons, namely: Benjamin<sup>3</sup> Brewster (son of Jonathan<sup>2</sup> Brewster), Isaac<sup>3</sup> Allerton (son of Fear<sup>2</sup> Brewster), William<sup>3</sup> Brewster and Wrestling<sup>3</sup> Brewster (sons of Love<sup>2</sup> Brewster), approximating four thousand and one hundred families. Also the records (the families only), of nine granddaughters of Elder Brewster, which are with the families of the second generation.

The greater part of the introductory material in the first volume is given in response to many inquiries and requests received from correspondents. This material and the biographical notes in the two volumes are presented as records and not as a literary effort.

Some time after beginning this Brewster genealogy the compiler learned that Mrs. Lucy Hall Greenlaw, of Boston, was preparing "Early Generations of the Brewster Family," which was printed later in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, volume liii. The compiler acknowledges her indebtedness to this valuable genealogical record of the first six generations in the male line, for information, supplementing her own material, for which due credit has been given in the Reference to Authorities in the following pages.

The late Reverend Ashbel Steele, A. M., in a footnote to page 402 of his admirable biographic history—Chief of the Pilgrims, or Life and Time of William Brewster, published in 1857, declared his intention of publishing a genealogy of Elder Brewster's descendants. This genealogy, however, was never printed. In answer to inquiries the compiler regrets her inability to give any information as to its scope or completeness, as she has never seen the Rev. Mr. Steele's manuscript, which, she is informed, has been lost for many years.

Those who are not familiar with genealogical research have little conception of the vast amount of time, labor, patience, perseverance and expense necessary in preparing a work of this kind. Although this book has cost in addition to many thousands of dollars, eleven years of study, labor and self-sacrifice; the writing of many thousands of letters and the receipt and careful reading of a very large number; months and sometimes years of waiting for answers to her inquiries, some of which are still unanswered; the perplexity over a lost link in the chain; the adjusting of conflicting dates of the same event, each of which was apparently verified, and the tracing of families whose residences were unknown, nevertheless the compiler has been partially repaid by the large number of records saved, many of which were fast becoming obscured or lost.

This publication, of two volumes, comprises the First Part of the Brewster Genealogy. For the Second Part of the same work she has compiled the family records of male and female descendants of nine granddaughters of Elder William Brewster, having about the same number of families as those in this First Part. At the present time the date of publication of the Second Part is indefinite.

The compiler extends her grateful and heartfelt thanks both to the many friends who have so faithfully contributed to this work, and for the encouragement received from those with whom it has been her pleasure and privilege to correspond. She also acknowledges with sincere thanks the kind assistance rendered by the publishers.

Actuated by a deep interest in the Brewster family history and a desire to be helpful, the compiler undertook the task of collecting these records for preservation. With the hope that they may benefit those who are similarly interested, and especially the future generations, she herewith offers the result of her labors.

EMMA C. BREWSTER JONES.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

The references to authorities for the first seven generations immediately follow a family record, or a group of family records.

The references to authorities for the eighth and following generations are "family papers."

"Family papers" include one or more of the following authorities: Bible records, gravestone inscriptions, deeds, diaries, charts, family letters and papers, personal recollections of those who communicated the information, and published records.

To determine the place of birth of a child in a family record where a hyphen connects two numbers, the children whose numbers are the same as the numbers having the hyphen and the intervening numbers were born at the same place. For example—the children of Jonathan<sup>2</sup> Brewster: i-iii born at Plymouth, iv Jones River, v-viii Duxbury, means that his children having the numbers i through iii were born at Plymouth, iv at Jones River and v through viii at Duxbury.

In a group of family records, the names of the children are in large and small capitals and have Roman numerals—i, ii, etc.; the grand-children have Arabic numerals—1, 2, etc., and the great grand-children have Arabic numerals in parentheses—(1), (2), etc. See family No. 22, p. 57, first child—i EZRA<sup>5</sup> ARNOLD, etc.

Where a town or city is repeated in a family record the state is omitted, but the state is given in connection with the same town or city where it is first mentioned.

OLD AND NEW STYLE OF DATING *

The correction of the calendar made by Pope Gregory XIII., in March, 1582, was immediately adopted by most Roman Catholic countries, although not established in Great Britain and her colonies until 1752. From this cause arose the custom indicating the change, by the use of double dates between the 1st day of January and the 25th day of March in each year. Thus, March 3rd, 1751-52, would be March 14th, 1752, new style.

By the new calendar of Pope Gregory, October 5th, 1582, became October 15, 1582, striking out ten days, and so continued until the year 1700, when one more day was dropped, and from October 5th, 1699, to October 6th, 1700, was one year.

In 1751 the British Parliament, by Statute Law, provided that "the then next first day of January shall be reckoned to be the first day of the year 1752, and that the day following the 2nd day of September, 1752, shall be called the 14th day of September, omitting eleven intermediate nominal days." Old style, therefore, ceased in Great Britain and her colonies at the end of the day September 2nd, 1752, and new style commenced on the morning of September 3rd, 1752. September 3rd, old style, became September 14th, 1752, new style.†

The manner of writing dates when New England was first settled was by numbering the months. March was the first month in the year and February the twelfth month. The 25th day of March being "Annunciation Day," was the first day of the year, and the 24th day of March the last day of the year. The practice of numbering the months continued in some of the towns until about 1660. After the numbering of the months was discontinued still the year commenced with the 25th day of March, and so continued until 1752.

* Notes made by Lot Edward Brewster, about 1840. If copied from a publication it is unknown to the compiler.

COAT OF ARMS

The illustration is reproduced by request, and is a copy of a painting of the coat of arms of the Brewster family in England, executed in London, England.

An extract from "Mayflower Passengers and Coat-Armour" in The Mayflower Descendant, vol. ii. pp. 160-63, is given below:

"In 1891 Mr. William S. Appleton published a list in the New England Historic-Genealogical Register of 'Positive Pedigrees and Authorized Arms.' This has been followed by a supplementary list bringing the number of names up to thirty-two. Proof in each case was indisputable, and no claim was admitted without the most careful scrutiny. Neither in these lists, nor in a manuscript list of some additional settlers likely to have been armigerous, but for whose use of arms there was insufficient proof to justify printing their names, does Mr. Appleton mention any Mayflower passenger. To those who know the care with which Mr. Appleton's work was done, this in itself is sufficient proof that neither Winslow, Standish, nor their fellow voyagers can be considered armigers."

In the annual report of the Committee on Heraldry, made to the Council of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, Dec. 15, 1898, and adopted by the Society at its annual meeting in 1899, as published in the Register, vol. liii. 399-40, it says: "Proof of right must either be found in the Heralds' records, or be established by authenticated pedigree direct from an armiger." In this report the Committee discourages the use of arms by Americans.

In Morton Dexter's publication, The England and Holland of the Pilgrims, p. 255, he says: "A. Steele (Chief of the Pilgrims, 38) infers that Brewster was descended from the Brewsters of Wrentham because an 'old copy of the same coat of arms' is said to have been preserved in one branch of the family in this country. But there appear to be several Brewster families in this country, and a coat of arms, unless supported by conclusive proof, is not satisfactory evidence. It deserves record, however, that when Brewster was cited before the High Court of Commission, Dec. 1, 1607, . . . he was described officially as 'William Bruster of Scrowbie, gen.' 'Gen' doubtless is an abbreviation of 'generosus' i. e., well born."

SCROOBY MANOR-HOUSE AS IT IS TO-DAY

From Dexter's THE ENGLAND AND HOLLAND OF THE PILGRIMS, (Houghton, Mifflin Co.)

SCROOBY MANOR-HOUSE *

Rev. Joseph Hunter, F. S. A., in his Founders of New Plymouth, says: "No reasonable doubt can ever arise, that the seat and centre of that religious community, which afterwards planted itself on the shores of New England, was at this Nottinghamshire village of Scrooby.

"This noted spot was the nucleus of the Pilgrim Church, and here was linked and riveted the solemn fellowship and unity of purpose and spirit, which subsisted through manifold perils until it had laid the foundations of a mighty empire in the distant shores of America."

These facts make the little village worthy of more than a passing notice, as it seems destined to become the Mecca of all Pilgrim descendants.

The accompanying illustration is from a recent photograph, and shows all that remains of the historic building, which has played such an important part in shaping the destiny of the New World.

In Governor Bradford's eulogy of William Brewster in his history "Of Plimoth Plantation," he mentions the manor-house at Scrooby as follows: "They [the Pilgrims] ordinarily mett at his house on y<sup>e</sup> Lords day, (which was a manor of y<sup>e</sup> bishops,) and with great love he entertained them when they came, making provission for them to his great charge."

Rev. Ashbel Steele, in The Life and Time of William Brewster, says: "'Scrooby Manor,' even as far back as William the Conqueror, if not earlier, was a possession of the Archbishops of York, and was to them a place of frequent sojourn, as well as a convenient resting-place in their journeys. . . . Here slept Margaret, Queen of Scotland, daughter of Henry VII, on her way to that kingdom. Here Cardinal Woolsey, . . . passed weeks 'ministering many deeds of charity.'"

Henry VIII, "with a gallant company," on his northern progress in 1541, lodged there.

* The Scrooby notes were compiled with the kind assistance of William Wallace Case, Washington, D. C.

William Wallace<sup>11</sup> Case, Almira Fay<sup>10</sup> Batcheller, Elizabeth<sup>9</sup> Fay, Mary<sup>8</sup> Paige, Mary<sup>7</sup> Foster, James<sup>6</sup> Foster, Mercy<sup>5</sup> Freeman, John<sup>4</sup> Freeman, Mercy<sup>3</sup> Prence, Patience<sup>2</sup> Brewster, William<sup>1</sup>.

Mr. Steele also says that after Elder Brewster's occupancy this historic building "was at length gradually neglected, and finally suffered to go to decay. One hundred years later—while the park still remained, the house had nearly fallen to the ground. In 1813 nothing remained marking the ancient abode of splendor and hospitality but some small part incorporated into a farmhouse, and in the garden an old mulberry tree, planted, tradition says, by the haughty Woolsey."

Leland, the ancient historian, describes it as it was upon his visit in 1538, as "a great Manor Place, standing withyn a Mote, and [be]longging to tharchbishop of York, buildid yn to [two] Courtes, whereof the first is very ample, and al buildid of Tymbre, saving the Front of the Haule, that is of Brike, to the wich ascenditur per gradus lapideos. The ynnere Courte Building, as far as I markid, was of Tymber Building, and was not in cumpace past the 4. parte of the utter [outer] Courte." *

In Morton Dexter's publication, The England and Holland of the Pilgrims, he quotes from the History of Nottinghamshire, by Thoroton, the great English historian, as follows: "Here [at Scrooby] within memory [i. e., of his first ed., 1677] stood a very fair Palace, a far greater House of receipt, and a better Seat for provision than Southwell, and had attending to it the North Soke, consisting of very many Towns thereabouts; it hath a fair park belonging to it. Archbishop Sandes caused it to be demised to his son Sir Samuel Sandes, since which the House hath been demolished almost to the ground."

The accompanying plan of the original manor-house and its possessions is copied, by permission, from The England and Holland of the Pilgrims. Mr. Dexter has visited the spot repeatedly, and, as recently as 1902, by permission of the late Lord Houghton, then lord of the manor, he made thorough examination of the premises including measurements and excavations.

Rev. William Elliot Griffis, in his Brave Little Holland, speaks of this old farmhouse as "the palace kitchen or servants' house" now used as a residence, and of the cow-house he says: "Cow-houses are not usually raftered with carved oak, yet here under the red tiles and over the heads of the horses and lowing oxen are superbly carved beams of old oak, dark with the centuries of time-staining. These were once the ceiling-timbers of the refectory, or chapel, of the archiepiscopal palace which stood hard by. It was under these oaken beams that the cradle of Massachusetts history began to rock. Here the Pilgrim Church was born."

In Mr. Dexter's Story of the Pilgrims he says: "This house stands upon the site of the ancient manor-house. Its southern wall is very thick, like those built in great houses three or four hundred years ago. There is much probability that this part of the building was included in the original manor-house.

"The short wall, extending from the present house back to the edge of the Ryton, used to contain stones evidently once portions of chiselled cornices or columns, and the roof of one of the present cow-houses is supported by carved beams * which probably did the same work formerly in the hall or chapel, and must have echoed the voices of Brewster and his fellow Pilgrims when they organized their historic church and planned their escape to Holland.

* One of these beams is now in the Congregational Library in Boston.

"It is easy to picture to one's self Brewster and Bradford and Robinson and Clyfton, with the little company of their associates, praying and singing, preaching and listening, planning and organizing, conversing and breaking bread together, enjoying thoroughly their precious fellowship, yet ever alert lest they be suddenly interrupted and arrested. Kings and queens, cardinals and archbishops had met and feasted within the same walls. But none were nobler than the humble Pilgrims, and none have left a record in human history like that which Brewster and his company began to make in that now almost vanished edifice.

"An important part of the present farmhouse was included in the manor-house where William Brewster lived."

From the testimony of these well informed writers it is certain that this modest farmhouse stands on the site once occupied by the ancient manor-house, which was the home of Elder Brewster and sheltered the Pilgrim band in its first efforts to establish the Pilgrim Church. It has been so accepted by the Pilgrim Society of Plymouth, Massachusetts, as is evidenced by a tablet, which may be seen on the western wall of the house, bearing the inscription:

This Tablet Erected By The Pilgrim Society of Plymouth, Mass.,
U. S. A., To Mark The Site Of The Ancient Manor-house Where Lived
William Brewster

From 1588 To 1608, And Where He Organized The Pilgrim Church, Of Which He Became Ruling Elder, And With Which, In 1608, He Removed To Amsterdam, In 1609 To Leyden, And In 1620 To Plymouth, Where He Died

April 10, 1644.

As the foregoing notes are going to press the compiler is informed that a committee, representing the General Society of Mayflower Descendants in the United States, is negotiating for the purchase of the property with the Ecclesiastical Commissioners of England, who hold the Scrooby Manor farm property for the Diocese of York, and with Captain W. H. Peake, the present lessee and occupant.

WILLIAM BREWSTER IN LEYDEN

At the time of the burial of Elder William Brewster's child in St. Pancras, Saturday, June 20, 1609, as recorded at Leyden, he lived in Stinksteeg, a short lane near the Hoogewoerds Bridge, and five days later he had removed to St. Ursulusteeg. (The England and Holland of the Pilgrims, 505-06.) "He subsequently removed to the Choorsteeg, as it would appear from the title page of Cartright's Commentaries on the Proverbs of Solomon, printed by him in 1617. The Choorsteeg (vicus choralis) is an alley extending from the Broadway to the choir of St. Peter's Church. These streets are obscure but eligibly situated." (Historical Magazine, iv. 4.)

St. Peter's (Lutheran), the cathedral church of Leyden, was built in 1121. Rev. John Robinson, M. A., the pastor of the Pilgrim Church and the associate of Elder Brewster, was buried under St. Peter's Church March 4, 1625. On the outer wall there is a bronze tablet, erected by the National Council of the Congregational Churches of the United States of America, in 1891, in memory of Rev. John Robinson.

"Just across the street, the Kloksteeg, is the site of the house in which Robinson lived and preached, and in the garden of which a score of smaller dwellings were built for other members of the Pilgrim company." (The England and Holland of the Pilgrims.)

The Dutch Reformed Church, at Delfs-haven, Holland, was built in 1416. In this church, tradition avers, the Pilgrims held farewell service just previous to their departure for the New World, in 1620. It stands at the edge of the canal, near which the Speedwell was moored.

THE PILGRIM SHIP, "MAYFLOWER"

As articles written without research have appeared in several journals, expressing doubt as to the authenticity of the name "Mayflower" applied to the first Pilgrim ship, the following extracts from the Plymouth Colony Records of Deeds and New England's Memorial are given as evidence that the vessel in which the Pilgrims landed at Cape Cod Harbor, November 11 (O. S.), November 21 (N. S.), 1620, was called "Mayflower":

First: At the top of the fourth page of the first volume of the Plymouth Colony Records of Deeds is this entry, made in 1623, or soon after, in the handwriting of Governor William Bradford: "The Falles of their grounds which came first over in the May-Floure according as thier lotes were cast. 1623."

Secondly: The name first appears in print in New England's Memorial, published in 1669, by Nathaniel Morton (who was the secretary of the Plymouth Colony from 1647 until his death in 1685, and who "had the custody of the records, and made many entries in this first volume of deeds"), wherein he says: "a small ship was bought and fitted out in Holland, of about sixty tons, called the Speedwell, as to serve to transport some of them over, so also to stay in the country, and attend upon fishing, and such other affairs as might be for the good and benefit of the colony when they came thither. Another ship was hired at London, of burthen about nine score, called the Mayflower, and all other things got in readiness, so, being prepared to depart, they had a solemn day of humiliation, the pastor teaching a part of the day very profitably, and suitably to the present occasion." (pp. 22-23) . . . "These things thus falling out it was resolved by the whole company to dismiss the lesser ship, and part of the company with her, and that the other part of the company should proceed in the bigger ship; which, when they had ordered matters thereunto, they made another sad parting, the one ship, viz., the lesser going back for London, and the other, viz., The Mayflower, Mr. Jones being master, proceeding on the intended voyage. These troubles being blown over, and now all being compact together in one ship, they put to sea again with a prosperous wind; . . . Thus they arrived at Cape Cod, alias Cape James, in November, 1620, and, being brought safe to land, they fell upon their knees, and blessed the God of heaven, who had brought them over the vast and furious ocean, and delivered them from many perils and miseries." (pp. 32-34), 1826 edition.

G. Cuthbert Blaxland, M. A., in his Mayflower Essays, London, 1896, p. 45, says: "What is the authority for the names of the two Pilgrim Ships of 1620?" He answers correctly as to the Speedwell by quoting from Morton's New England's Memorial, published in 1669, but he makes an error in stating that the first mention of the Mayflower is also by Morton, as is shown by the preceding copy of the entry made by Governor Bradford.

The Mayflower was chartered by the Merchant Adventurers of London to transport a part of the Leyden Church congregation to this country. She sailed from Southampton, England, August 15 (N. S.), and from Plymouth, England, September 16 (N. S.), and anchored in Cape Cod Harbor, November 21 (N. S.), 1620.

The illustration, "The Mayflower," is a copy from a photogravure reduction made by the John A. Lowell Bank Note Company, from the oil painting, "The Mayflower," by the marine artist, Marshall Johnson, of Boston, from the celebrated model of the vessel made by Captain J. W. Collins, of Boston, by order of the United States Government, and now on exhibition at the National Museum, Washington, D. C. Captain Collins was the honorary curator of naval architecture of the museum for many years. This is the only true and accepted model of the Mayflower.

THE MAYFLOWER COMPACT*

"The Compact was drawn up and signed on board the Mayflower, 21 November, 1620 (11 November, old style).

"The following copy, with the introduction, is taken literally from Bradford's History, which does not give the names of those who signed the original document.

"The earliest known list of the signers is that contained in Nathaniel Morton's New England's Memorial, published in 1669. In the first edition of that book the names are arranged in the order here given, three columns of seven names each at the bottom of the page, and the others in three columns at the top of the next page. The line dividing the columns in the list appended indicates the bottom of the page in the 'Memorial.'"

Moyses fletcher, John Goodman, Thomas Williams, Digerie

.10. Preist, Edmond Margeson, Peter Browne, Richard Britterige, Richard Clarke, Richard Gardenar, Gilbert Winslow

John Alden was hired for a cooper, at South-Hampton wher

.1. the ship victuled; and being a hopefull yong man was much desired, but left to his owne liking to go, or stay when he came here, but he stayed, and maryed here.

John Allerton, and Thomas Enlish were both hired, the later to goe m<sup>r</sup> of a shalop here. and y<sup>e</sup> other was reputed as one

.2. of y<sup>e</sup> company, but was to go back (being a seaman) for the help of others behind. But they both dyed here, before the shipe returned.

Ther were allso other .2. seamen hired to stay a year here in

.2. the country, William Trevore; and one Ely. But when their time was out they both returned.

These bening aboute a hundred sowls came over in this first ship; and began this worke, which god of his goodnes hath hithertoo blessed; let his holy name have y<sup>e</sup> praise.

And seeing it hath pleased him to give me to see .30. years compleated, since these beginings. And that the great works of his providence are to be observed. I have thought it not unworthy my paines, to take a veiw of the decreasings, & Increasings of these persons, and such changs as hath passed over them, & theirs, in this thirty years. It may be of some use to such as come after; but however I shall rest in my owne benefite.

I will therefore take them in order as they lye.

m<sup>r</sup> Carver and his wife, dyed the first year, he in y<sup>e</sup> spring, she in y<sup>e</sup> somer; also his man Roger, and y<sup>e</sup> litle boy Jasper, dyed before either of them, of y<sup>e</sup> commone Infection. Desire Minter, returned to her freind & proved not very well, and dyed in England. His servant boy Latham after more than .20. years stay in the country went into England; and from thence to 15 the Bahamy Ilands in y<sup>e</sup> west Indees; and ther with some others was stavred for want of food. His maid servant married, & dyed a year or tow after here in this place. His servant John Howland married the daughter of John Tillie, Elizabeth, and they are both now living; and have .10. children now all living and their eldest daughter hath .4. children And ther .2. dougter, one, all living and other of their Children mariagable. so .15. are come of them.

m<sup>r</sup> Brewster lived to very old age; about .80. years he was when he dyed, having lived some .23. or .24. years here in y<sup>e</sup> countrie. & though his wife dyed long before, yet she dyed aged. His sone Wrastle dyed a yonge man unmarried; his sone Love, lived 4. till this year .1650. and dyed, & left .4. children, now living. His daughters which came over after him, are dead but have left sundry children alive; his eldst sone is still liveing, and hath 2. .9. or .10. children, one married. who hath a child, or 2.

Richard More, his brother dyed the first winter; but he is 4. married, and hath .4. or .5. children, all living.

m<sup>r</sup> Ed: Winslow, his wife dyed the first winter; and he married 2. with the widow of m<sup>r</sup> White, and hath .2. children living by her marigable, besides sundry that are dead. one of his servants dyed, as also the litle girle soone after the ships arivall. But his man 8. George Sowle, is still living, and hath .8. children.

William Bradford, his wife dyed soone after their arivall; and 4 he married againe; and hath .4. children, .3: whereof are married. *who dyed 9 of May, 1658.**

m<sup>r</sup> Allerton his wife dyed with the first, and his servant John Hooke. his sone Bartle is married in England but I know not how many children he hath. His doughter remember is married
 .8. at Salem & hath .3. or .4. children living. And his doughter mary is married here, & hath .4. children. Him selfe married
 by here but she is long since dead. And he is married againe, and hath left this place long agoe. So I account his Increase to be :8: besids his sons in England.

m<sup>r</sup> ffuller, his servant dyed at sea; and after his wife came
 .2. over, he had tow children by her; which are living and growne up to years. but he dyed some .15. years agoe.

John Crakston dyed in the first mortality; and about some
 .5. or 6. years after his sone dyed, having lost him selfe in y<sup>e</sup> wodes, his feet became frosen, which put him into a feavor, of which he dyed.

Captain Standish his wife dyed in the first sicknes; and he
 .4. married againe, and hath .4. sones liveing, and some are dead.

who dyed .3. of Octob. 1655.†

m<sup>r</sup> Martin, he, and all his, dyed in the first Infection; not long after the arivall.

m<sup>r</sup> Molines, and his wife, his sone, & his servant dyed the first .15. winter. Only his dougter priscila survied, and married with John Alden, who are both living, and have .11. children. And their eldest daughter is married & hath five children.

See N. E. Memorial, p. 22.‡

m<sup>r</sup> White, and his .2. servants dyed soone after ther landing.
 .7. His wife married with m<sup>r</sup> Winslow (as is before noted) His .2.

* * This note and that giving the date of Captain Standish's death are in the same handwriting.

"Prince's note in his own copy of the New England Memorial (see p. 452 of Bradford's History, Ed. 1856) shows that these two entries must have been made before he received the manuscript. In neither entry is the year correctly stated. Governor Bradford died 9 May, 1657, and Captain Standish 3 October, 1656."

The evidence presented in support of this theory is interesting, although, as Mr. Bowman himself admits, the proof is not conclusive. See The Mayflower Descendant, vol. v. pp. 47-53.]

PILGRIM NOTES

The first entry in the records of Plymouth Colony is an incomplete list of "The Meersteads & Garden plotes of those which came first layd out 1620." Each of these "Garden plotes" contained one "aker."

"the streete" in Plymouth was called First Street (later changed to Leyden Street), and originally extended from the shore to the old fort at the summit of what is now Burial Hill.

The "high way" led to the Town Brook, and through it the Pilgrims brought water from "the very sweet brooke," into which the "many delicate springs" still continue to flow.

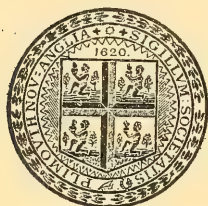

The Pilgrims first erected a "Common House." In December, 1621, seven dwelling-houses had been built, besides four for the use of the plantation. The houses were constructed of rough hewn timber, with roofs of thatch and windows of oiled paper, while the fireplaces were made of stone laid in clay, and the chimneys stood outside the walls.

The first house at the left in the illustration of Leyden Street, is on the site upon which the Pilgrims erected their first, or "Common House."

In 1621 the fort was built as a protection from the Indians, and it was also used by the Pilgrims as a meeting house and place of worship.

Elder Brewster's house in Plymouth was at the intersection of "the streete" and "high way."

In the Division of Land, in 1623, "Mr William Brewster" was allotted "6 akers." Later, he built a house in Duxbury, near Captain's Hill, where he lived, but died in Plymouth.

SEAL OF PLYMOUTH COLONY

"The first Tuesday in June was made the legal day of election of governor and seven assistants, 'to rule and govern the plantation as prescribed by law.' The election was confined to the freemen. To be a freeman the individual must be 'at least 21 years of age, of a sober and peaceable conversation, orthodox in the fundamentals of religion and have a certain ratable estate.'"—Steele's Life of Brewster.

"The ages of the principal men of the colony, only, are known. On their arrival in 1620, Carver was probably the oldest; Brewster was 56; Standish 36; Bradford 32; Allerton 31; Howland 28; Winslow 26 and Alden 21. Robinson, the Leyden pastor, was at this time 45 years of age."—Winsor's Hist. of Duxbury, p. 55.

Elder William Brewster's affidavit made at Leyden, June 25, 1609, states that he was then 42 years of age. Therefore, in 1620 he was in his 54th year.

In the Division of the Cattle, which was made June 1, 1627 (N. S.), and recorded in the Plymouth Colony Records, vol. i. pp. 50-57, Elder Brewster and his family were allotted cattle, as follows:

"Out at the mouth of Boston Harbor, between the main ship channel and Broad Sound, is a group of seven picturesque rocky islands, called The Brewsters, and nearly two miles in length from north to south. Near them are many submerged rocks and ledges, some of which are full of peril to mariners, while others are famous as fishing grounds. . . .

"Scientific persons have stated that this group of sea-swept rocks is the débris and foundation of an ancient island, larger than any now in the harbor, which once occupied this area, and has been destroyed by the storms of immemorial ages. They received their name about the year 1621, in honor of the famous Elder Brewster, at whose home in Scrooby the primitive Pilgrim Church used to meet, before its flight to Holland and then to America."

The principal islands in the group are known as Great Brewster, Little Brewster, Middle Brewster and Outer Brewster. The light-house, "Boston Light," is on Little Brewster Island. Many wrecks occurred on these rocky ledges in former days, and there was hot fighting on the islands in the Revolutionary War. (See illustrated chapter on "The Surf-Beaten Brewster Islands," in King's Handbook of Boston Harbor.)

"The Town of Brewster, Barnstable County, Massachusetts, was incorporated 19 February, 1803, and was named in honor of Elder William Brewster, a large part of the inhabitants being his descendants. The town was originally the northern part of the town of Harwich."—Brewster, Mass., Vital Records.

In 1810 the population of the town of Brewster was 1112, and in 1900 it was 829.

The majority of the descendants mentioned above are descended from Elder Brewster through his daughter, Patience (Brewster) Prence.

One of the great national historic paintings, "The Embarkation of the Pilgrims," at Delfs-haven, Holland, July, 1620, bound via England to North America, painted by Robert W. Weir, was placed in the Rotunda of the Capitol at Washington, D. C., December 21, 1843, by order of Congress. The scene is laid on the deck of the vessel. Mr. Robinson, the pastor, is making the parting prayer just before her departure, Elder Brewster is holding the open Bible, and Governor Carver, Mr. Bradford and their wives form the center group of the picture.

A copy of this painting, executed by Edgar Parker, of Boston, is in Pilgrim Hall, Plymouth, Mass.

Another picture of "The Embarkation of the Pilgrims," forms one of the eight large frescos, by E. W. Cope, of famous incidents of English history, which line the Peers Corridor in the Houses of Parliament, London, England.

In the fresco decorations of the President's Room, in the Capitol at Washington, by Constantino Brumidi, Elder Brewster is painted as typifying "Religion."

The Brewster Chest, which traditionally, was brought in the Mayflower by Elder William Brewster, descended to his great, great grandson, Joseph<sup>5</sup> Brewster (Nathaniel<sup>4</sup>, William<sup>3</sup>, Love<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>) of Duxbury, Mass., who married Jedidah White. Their daughter, Ruth<sup>6</sup> Brewster, married Samuel Sampson, and about 1802 Mr. and Mrs. Sampson moved to Chester, Mass., carrying the chest with them. Mrs. Sampson died, and having no children Mr. Sampson went, March 5, 1819, to live in the family of his friend, Plin Day, of Chester, and they executed an agreement by which Sampson gave Day the use of his farm during his (Sampson's) life, and Day agreed to provide for Sampson during his (Sampson's) life, give him proper burial and set a gravestone for him. Sampson died in 1822 aged 82 years, 10 months and 2 days, and left the Brewster chest, with his other effects, to Day. Mr. Day sold the chest Nov. 14, 1844, to Rev. Thomas Robbins, of Hartford, Conn., librarian of the Connecticut Historical Society, for twenty-five dollars, Dr. Robbins making the purchase for the Society, and it has remained in the Society's rooms since that time.

The above is from manuscript, letters and documents written at the time of the purchase. The statements are also confirmed by an affidavit made a few years ago by a daughter of Plin Day. The tradition of it being a Mayflower chest has come down in several separate lines of the Brewster family.

Pilgrim Hall, at Plymouth, Mass., was erected in 1824, by the Pilgrim Society, on a site once owned by Governor Winslow, and later by Governor Bradford. It contains many relics of the Pilgrims and of early colonial times, among them Elder Brewster's Chair, a gallery of valuable pictures, and a library of books relating to New England history.

Of the First Pilgrim Springs, at Truro, Cape Cod, Mass., Mourt's Relation says:

“There we found springs of fresh water,
Of which we were heartily glad, and sat
Us downe and drunke our first New England water
With as much delight as ever we drunke
Drinke in all our lives.”

The water of the Elder Brewster Spring at Plymouth, Mass., has been brought to a drinking fountain, built of field stone, standing on the ancient land allotted to Elder Brewster and where he built his home, on First Street, now Leyden Street, in 1621. This fountain was erected about 1895. It is marked “The Original Elder Brewster Spring,” and bears the quaint invitation:

“Drink here and quench your thirst.
From this spring, Pilgrims drank first.”

PILGRIM MEMORIAL MONUMENT AT PROVINCETOWN, MASSACHUSETTS

On November 21st (N. S.), 1620, after a tempestuous voyage of nine weeks, the ship Mayflower, bearing the Pilgrim company, of which William Brewster was the ruling elder and spiritual leader, dropped anchor in the harbor of Cape Cod. Here the party remained for several weeks, meantime exploring the country in search of a suitable place for a permanent settlement.

There had been murmurings and dissensions during the voyage among certain servants and mechanics, some of whom were overheard to say, that upon reaching land they would use their liberty as they desired, as the charter or patent granted to the party by the authorities in England was for a settlement in Virginia and not in New England. Hence, when the ship came to its anchorage in Cape Cod harbor the whole company was called together in the cabin and there was drawn and signed the famous Compact—the first charter of a pure democracy known to man.

The harbor of Cape Cod is now the harbor of Provincetown. Here, upon an eminence overlooking a great stretch of country and a vast waste of sea, the Cape Cod Pilgrim Memorial Association is erecting a lofty monument of stone to commemorate the arrival of the Mayflower and the writing and adoption in its cabin, by the Pilgrim Fathers, of the immortal compact of civil government. Doubtless, it will stand for centuries, a great historic landmark and an object lesson to thousands of incoming immigrants of the cost and value of political liberty and freedom of conscience.

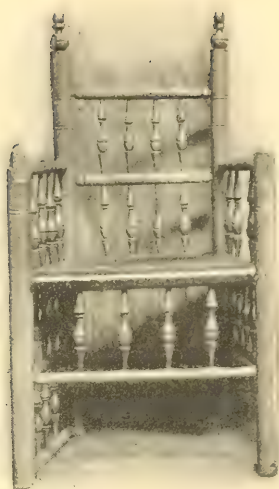

The monument will be of the Italian Renaissance order, two hundred and fifty feet in height, and visible for more than thirty miles at sea. Congress has made an appropriation of $40,000, the Commonwealth of Massachusetts $25,000, the town of Provincetown $5,000, and the remainder of $100,000 (the cost of the monument), has been given by private subscription. Also, each of the state societies of Mayflower Descendants has contributed a stone having an appropriate inscription.

The corner-stone of this national monument was laid August 20, 1907, with the solemn ritual of the Masonic order, by the Grand Lodge of Masons of Massachusetts. Honorable Curtis Guild, Jr.,

Governor of Massachusetts, spoke briefly in historic vein and introduced Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, the orator of the day. The President delivered a striking eulogy of the Pilgrims and of Puritan character, and spoke with his customary vigor and directness upon present day matters of national importance. Besides, there were addresses by the British Ambassador, James Bryce, United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and Congressman William C. Lovering of Massachusetts. There was a naval reception, and salvos of artillery greeted the day, the occasion and the officials, and thus an imposing tribute was offered to the memory of the little band, who once anchored their storm-tossed barque in this harbor and made themselves immortal.

It is expected that the monument will be completed and dedicated in the summer of 1909.

FIRST SETTLEMENT IN NEW ENGLAND *

In the address delivered Dec. 22, 1820, by Daniel Webster, at Plymouth, Mass., in commemoration of this event, in speaking of the manner in which the Pilgrims left England for Holland, in a stormy night, from an unfrequented barren heath on the shores of Lincolnshire, a part of the little band being taken into custody, while embarking, by mounted armed men, and the rest who had escaped, in danger of shipwreck, he exclaims: "What are their crimes, that they hide themselves in darkness? To what punishment are they exposed that, to avoid it, men, and women, and children, thus encounter the surf of the North Sea, and the terrors of a night storm? What induces this armed pursuit, and this arrest of fugitives, of all ages and both sexes? This was not the flight of guilt, but of virtue. It was an humble and peaceful Religion, flying from causeless oppression. It was Conscience, attempting to escape from the arbitrary rule of the Stewarts. It was Robinson and Brewster, leading off their little band from their native soil, at first to find shelter on the shore of the neighboring Continent, but ultimately to come hither; and, having surmounted all difficulties and braved a thousand dangers, to find here a place of refuge and of rest. Thanks be to God, that this spot was honoured as the Asylum of Religious liberty! May its standard, reared here, remain here for ever! May it rise up as high as Heaven till its Banner shall fan the air of both Continents, and wave as a glorious Ensign of peace and security to the Nations."

The following are extracts from Daniel Webster's speech at the Pilgrim Festival, New York City, in 1850 (published 1853):

Gentlemen: There was, in ancient times, a ship that carried Jason to the acquisition of the Golden Fleece. There was a flagship at the battle of Actium which made Augustus Cæsar master of the world. In modern times there have been flagships which have carried Hawke, and Howe, and Nelson of the other continent, and Hall, and Decatur, and Stewart of this, to triumph. What are they all, in the chance of remembrance among men, to that little bark, the Mayflower, which reached these shores in 1620? Yes, brethren, that Mayflower was a flower destined to be of perpetual bloom! Its verdure will stand the sultry blasts of summer and the chilling winds of autumn. It will defy winter. It will defy all climate and all time, and will continue to spread its petals to the world, and to exhale an everlasting odor and fragrance to the last syllable of recorded time. . . .

Gentlemen, brethren of New England! whom I have come some hundreds of miles to meet this night, let me present to you one of the most distinguished of those personages who came hither on the deck of the Mayflower. Let me fancy that I now see Elder William Brewster entering the door at the further end of this hall; a tall erect figure, of plain dress, with a respectful bow, mild and cheerful, but of no merriment that reaches beyond a smile. Let me suppose that his image stood now before us, or that it was looking in upon this assembly. 'Are ye,' he would say, with a voice of exultation, and yet softened with melancholy, 'are ye our children? Does this scene of refinement, of elegance, of riches, of luxury, does all this come from our labors? Is this magnificent city, the like of which we never saw nor heard of on either continent, is this but an offshoot from Plymouth Rock?

"Quis jam locus . . .

Quae regio in terris nostri non plena laboris?"

Is this one part of the great reward for which my brethren and myself endured lives of toil and of hardship? We had faith and hope. God granted us the spirit to look forward, and we did look forward. But this scene we never anticipated. Our hopes were on another life. Of earthly gratifications we tasted little; for human honors we had little expectation. Our bones lie on the hill in Plymouth churchyard, obscure, unmarked, secreted, to preserve our graves from the knowledge of savage foes. No stone tells where we lie. And yet, let me say to you who are our descendants, who possess this glorious country and all it contains, who enjoy this hour of prosperity and the thousand blessings showered upon it by the God of your fathers, we envy you not, we reproach you not. Be rich, be prosperous, be enlightened. Live in pleasure, if such be your allotment on earth; but live, also, always to God and to duty. Spread yourselves and your children over the continent, accomplish the whole of your great destiny, and if it be that through the whole you carry Puritan hearts with you, if you still cherish an undying love of civil and religious liberty, and mean to enjoy them yourselves, and are willing to shed your heart's blood to transmit them to your posterity, then will you be worthy descendants of Allerton and Bradford, and the rest of those who landed from stormy seas on the Rock of Plymouth.

WILLIAM BREWSTER

HIS TRUE POSITION IN OUR COLONIAL HISTORY

By HON. LYMAN DENISON BREWSTER *

The story of the Mayflower and Plymouth Rock is the story of the formation of a little Separatist or Congregational Church at Scrooby, England, its escape to Holland, its migration from thence to Plymouth, and its establishment there as the first embodiment in America of freedom in the Church and equality in the State.

William Brewster cradled the church at Scrooby, in his own home. He devoted his means to the support of its ministers and the succor of its members. After suffering fine and imprisonment and risking his life for this heresy, he helped the little flock to Holland, where his duty as elder intrusted him especially with the discipline and building up of the Church and the preservation therein of soundness of doctrine. This duty he successfully performed with great gentleness and equal firmness. While in Leyden his arrest was sought for publishing Protestant books for circulation in England and Scotland.

He was in every respect the co-equal and colleague with Robinson in all the measures for preparing the voyage to America, and shares with Carver and Cushman the honor of procuring the requisite London assistance.

That he drafted the Compact of November 21, 1620, in the cabin of the Mayflower seems almost certain. That he was the moral, religious and spiritual leader of the Colony during its first years of peril and struggle and its chief civil adviser and trusted guide until the time of his death is quite certain. But for his ecclesiastical position he would have been Governor of the Colony.

So that, while it was perhaps unfortunate, as a matter of good taste, that Rev. Ashbel Steele entitled his valuable biography "Chief of the Pilgrims: or The Life and Time of William Brewster"—unfortunate, since the modest Elder of Plymouth was the last man in the world to institute comparisons with his brethren, it is nevertheless true as a matter of history that he was indeed in the fullest sense "The Chief of the Pilgrims." And it is also true that having the rare felicity to be both the founder of the first free Church in America and also the founder of the first free colony in America, he was in a sense in which no other man, not even Roger Williams (as I shall show) can claim the honor—the first Apostle of both civil and religious liberty on this continent.

* An Address Delivered before the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants, 13 February, 1902, at Boston.

In the light of recent research he stands out more clearly than ever, the leading figure of the Mayflower and of Plymouth: In the prime of his intellectual vigor, in the 54th year of his age, the only reason why the Elder was not chosen the first Governor of the Plymouth Colony, says Hutchinson in his History, was that "He was their ruling elder, which seems to have been the bar to his being their Governor—civil and ecclesiastical office, in the same person, being then deemed incompatible." Perhaps an equally cogent reason was that an outlawed exile would hardly be "persona grata" to the officers of the Crown.

Some subsequent historians, not realizing that, as Judge Baylies says, "the power of the church was then superior to the civil power," or the true reason of the apparent but not real subordination of the Elder to the Governors (Carver and Bradford), have failed to give to the heroic Elder the supremacy he deserves over each and all, as the heart, brain and soul of the new Plymouth enterprise, without whom it could hardly have been attempted, with whom it became the most memorable and successful pioneer colonization on the American continent after its discovery by Columbus.

Let me mention some of the admirable qualities of his leadership. Not intending in the least to suggest a word in derogation or depreciation of the good qualities, nay the grand qualities of those superb fellow Pilgrims, Bradford, Winslow, Carver and Standish, I will state briefly what he was, what he accomplished.

Of gentle birth, educated at Cambridge, a courtier before he was twenty years of age, in high esteem with Her Majesty's Secretary of State, treated by him more like a son than a servant, soon a member of the English Embassy to Holland, after loyally and faithfully serving his patron Davison who was deposed from his high position by the perfidy of the Queen, he, after suffering years of persecution in building up the Mayflower church at Scrooby, left his native land, his position and his fortune, to be an exile in Holland and a pilgrim in America.

A word each on his scholarship, his statesmanship, his saintliness and his standing among the Founders of States.

First, as to his scholarship and ability as a lay preacher. It was always known that he was a trained scholar of the greatest of English Universities, but it remained for the late Dr. Dexter to show the depth and breadth, the fullness and ripeness of his learning and wisdom. Dr. Dexter wrote to me that he regarded him as the ablest man of the first generation of New England colonists, and no man was better qualified to give that judgment. While a persecuted refugee in Leyden he published and in some instances himself printed and edited both popular and erudite theological treatises in Latin and English. While living in his log house in Plymouth, built by his own hands, he yearly received supplies of newly published books in Latin and English, and his library was inventoried at his death in 1644 at four hundred volumes.

Dr. Dexter took the brief headings of the inventory deciphered by Mr. Winsor and tracing out the books through the leading libraries of England and Europe, restored the full titles. Sixty-two were in Latin and ninety-eight commentaries on or translations of the Bible. Dr. Dexter says:

"It is my strong impression that it is very doubtful whether, for its first quarter-century, New England anywhere else had so rich a collection of exegetical literature as this."

With such a scholar to explain the Scriptures, which was the chief function of the pulpit in those days, it is no wonder that when a minister who came over in 1629 was chosen to be the Plymouth pastor, the people "finding him to be a man of low gifts and parts, they, as providence gave opportunity, improved others as his assistants." And this scholar worked with his own hands to build his house in Plymouth, and afterwards in Duxbury, and up to the age of nearly eighty helped to cultivate his own farm. And there is nothing to show, says one biographer, in the records that he ever asked for or received any salary.

But the crowning glory of this wealth of learning and knowledge was this. For thirty years it was devoted constantly, utterly and superbly to the people with whom he had cast his hazardous lot. All he could learn he freely imparted to those he taught.

He was a scholar and preacher from the people, with the people, for the people and to the people, and in their close companionship of toil and danger the people did indeed hear him gladly. Of their place of worship and order of assembling De Rasiere, a wise observer from Holland in 1627 gives this often repeated but always interesting sketch:

He says: "Upon the hill they had a large square house, with a flat roof, made of thick sawn planks, stayed with oak beams, upon the top of which they have six cannons, which shoot iron balls of four and five pounds, and command the surrounding country. The lower part they use for their church, where they preach on Sundays, and the usual holidays. They assemble by beat of drum, each with his musket or firelock, in front of the captain's door; they have their cloaks on, and place themselves in order, three abreast, and are led by a sergeant without beat of drum. Behind comes the Governor, in a long robe; beside him on the right hand comes the preacher with his cloak on, and on the left hand the captain with his side-arms and cloak on, and with a small cane in his hand; and so they march in good order, and each sets his arms down near him. Thus they enter their place of worship, constantly on their guard night and day."

How much Governor Bradford, the excellent governor of the colony for over thirty years, owed not only to the guidance, but to the training, teaching and companionship of his old neighbor, comrade and life-long friend, his grateful words bear full witness. He says of Brewster that "he was foremost in our adventure in England and in Holland and here." John Brown of Bedford calls him "The Great Heart of their pilgrimage." Dr. Griffis says "from the first Brewster was the soul of the Plymouth colony."

The devout Elder was regarded with the utmost veneration and reverence in his later years by the colonists of the eight towns into which the little settlement of 1620 had grown. Hence I think the popular impression of the old patriarch pictures him with the austere severity and rigid narrowness of an old iron-sides, rather than with the "sweetness and light" of Hampden and Milton. Nothing could be further from the truth. Humblest and gentlest of men, his flock almost worshipped him because they loved him and had reason to love him, while that love was returned in full measure. and the chronicle says of his death in which he "so sweetly departed this life unto a better": "We did all grievously mourn his loss as that of a dear and loving friend."

Of his personal qualities Bradford says: "He was wise and discreet and well spoken, having a grave and deliberate utterance, of a very cheerful spirit, very sociable and pleasant amongst his friends, of an humble and modest mind, of a peaceable disposition, undervaluing himself and his own abilities, and sometimes overvaluing others; inoffensive and innocent in his life and conversation, which gained him the love of those without, as well as those within. . . . He was tender-hearted and compassionate of such as were in misery, but especially of such as had been of good estate and rank, and were fallen unto want and poverty, either for goodness and religion's sake, or by the injury and oppression of others. . . . In teaching, he was moving and stirring of affections, also very plain and distinct in what he taught . . . He had a singular good gift in prayer, both public and private. . . . He always thought it were better for ministers to pray oftener, and divide their prayers, than be long and tedious in the same."

"He taught twice every Sabbath, and that both powerfully and profitably, to the great contentment of his hearers, and their comfortable edification; yea, many were brought to God by his ministrie. He did more in this behalf in a year, than many that have their hundreds a year do in all their lives." Bradford's whole eulogy of his beloved friend and pastor is the most pathetic and beautiful passage in his History of New Plymouth so lately restored to the State of Massachusetts.

Next as a statesman. If the acorn is judged by the oak it produces, he had no superior in that age of great statesmen. How far-reaching the policy that foresaw that the refugees must leave Holland, if they would preserve their English morals with their English freedom! How tersely in the short Social Compact which we believe he penned, impromptu apparently, in the cabin of the Mayflower is the whole genius of "Liberty, Equality and Fraternity" put in a few lines! Well has it been called the "germ of all our American Constitutions and Declarations of Right"—"Magna Charta reinforced by the spirit of the Dutch Commonwealth."

Professor Goldwin Smith in his brilliant little book called "The United States Political History 1492-1871" tells us that the recital, in the Compact signed on the Mayflower, of the colonists' allegiance and fealty to King James was a great and serious mistake and "created a relation false from the beginning," that in it "lay the fatal seeds of misunderstanding," etc. On the contrary the mistake is all on the side of the Professor. Not to have acknowledged that fealty and allegiance would have been false, and if interpreted as seriously intended would have been suicidal. It was because they intended to be English colonists and English freemen that they left Holland. In all the business of procuring their charter that fealty is assumed and this allegiance and fealty is reiterated and reaffirmed in the Plymouth Code of 1636, of whose drafters the Elder was one.

How superior the wise, peaceful, just and courageous policy of the Plymouth Colony in its treatment of the Indians and its fellow colonies! And the man who always had the last word in these important matters—the Joshua and Nestor of the plantation was Elder William Brewster. Here again see the crowning glory of his success as a political philosopher. He put his glorious theory of Equality and Fraternity into practice, and Liberty could not help being the result. The first Plymouth town meeting of equal citizens with equal rights had it in the seeds of Yorktown and Gettysburg. It was the first clear prophecy of the Republic which was to extend from ocean to ocean.

Dr. Gregory of Edinburgh in his recent work on Puritanism, cool and judicial Scotchman as he is, sums up the consensus of historians when he says "It is not too much to say that in a very real and profound sense the Mayflower carried with her the destinies of the world. Her crew (evidently the doctor means her passengers) were not only the pioneers of civil and religious liberty, they were the heralds of a faith which tested by the heroic men it has formed and heroic actions it has produced may indeed challenge comparison with any faith by which men have been moulded and inspired. The struggle they were called upon to wage was a struggle for liberty not only in the New World but in the old, and but for the planting of Puritanism in New England the victory of Puritanism in the Mother Country would have been short-lived, and shorn of its most characteristic features and products." And in spite of all criticism Bancroft states but a fact when he says that "in the cabin of the Mayflower humanity recovered its rights and instituted government on the basis of equal laws for the general good."

Dr. Gregory in summing up the influence of the Mayflower and Plymouth Rock, wisely and justly, it seems to me, merges and blends the Pilgrim Separatist and the Massachusetts colony Puritans as exerting essentially the same influence after 1630 on subsequent history, since all the Puritans of New England soon became Separatists.

Better than all, he was a saint in a church where saint worship was abolished. Of his own sincere, devout, spiritual, religious faith and practice every day of his exiled life bore witness. But what especially distinguished him as a religious leader in those days was his breadth, toleration and charity. When that sturdy and heroic heretic Roger Williams in Plymouth denounced the Mother Church in England as Anti-Christ, pronouncing it sinful to attend its worship or to fellowship with it, the more charitable Leader of the Pilgrims refused to go with him or to hold to any such nonsense. In fact the spiritual descendants of William Brewster and John Robinson were not more Jonathan Edwards and the New England Calvinists than Phillips Brooks, Horace Bushnell, Henry Ward Beecher and Charles Briggs. "The Pilgrims were neither Puritans nor Persecutors" was the motto I saw some years ago written over the spot across the street from which Elder William built his house. But in reality the Pilgrim was, as Dr. Dexter says, "The Puritan in the superlative degree."

John Robinson and Roger Williams are justly praised as the fathers and apostles of religious toleration in their age. But William Brewster was more catholic and tolerant than either, at an earlier date.

"Paget" according to Powicke in his recent Life of Henry Barrows "says that Robinson had 'tolerated' his fellow elder 'for this long time' in this practice" and "this practice" was the custom of hearing ministers of the Church of England, and it is a touching evidence of the Elder's influence on the life and belief of his beloved pastor that there was found in the study of John Robinson after his decease a treatise on "The Lawfulness of Hearing of the Ministers of the Church of England." We have already seen how on this very point the Elder of Plymouth was more tolerant than Roger Williams in the new colony. The sturdy leader who surpassed both John Robinson and Roger Williams in true catholicity and toleration before 1620 may well stand for the Pioneer of Religious Liberty in New England and America.

The claim that the Elder was in the slightest degree blameworthy in advising the Plymouth Church to accept Roger Williams' petition for a dismissal from that church to the church in Salem will hardly pass muster with any student of history thoroughly conversant with the "chip on the shoulder" characteristics of the great Founder of Rhode Island, or who has thoughtfully read Bradford's words of tender regret at the parting—words which undoubtedly echoed the sentiments of the Elder.

It seems to me that Dr. Gregory's criticism of the unstinted laudation of the intrepid Baptist by Mr. Strauss when he puts him on a level with Luther and Cromwell is fully justified. There seems to be a lack of historical perspective.

Easily first among the Pilgrims (for Robinson the master mind of all was not a Pilgrim as he stayed on the other side of the seas and is out of the comparison), how does the scholar, teacher and sainted father of the first colony of New England stand among the founders of States? Lord Bacon puts the founders of States in the first rank of the Great Men of the world. It seems to me that depends on the motive, and method of their achievements. Where conquest and greed are the motives, and treachery and bloodshed the methods, I see nothing to admire or respect. But what colony was ever founded on loftier aims, with more devoted sacrifice and by more honorable methods than that which was started in position at Plymouth two hundred and eighty two years ago. Its free spirit has taken possession of the continent. The man whose thought originated, whose spirit pervaded, whose presence stimulated, whose counsels preserved that colony in its infancy can well bear comparison with any of the famous colonizers of the continent.

It was no accident that made William Brewster the planter of a great church, and pioneer of a great state. The long schooling in Holland after the sharp persecution in England seems to have educated the Pilgrims and their great leader to a more gracious spirit, a more Christian sense of the relations of man to man than was possessed by the subsequent New England colonists. There was less bigotry, no persecution and little of the superstition and narrowness that darkened the history of most of the other New England colonies. The bond that kept together that immortal band through flood and famine, pestilence and peril, was not commercial or primarily political. It was religious and spiritual. It was faith in God and the Gospel of the Christ. And their spiritual leader full of that faith himself, inspired his flock with his own zeal and moulded the colony not only during his own life but for a whole generation after. The very symmetry and perfection of William Brewster's character, have in a sense prevented a full and just recognition of his services to church and state.

But to my mind the entire sanity, moderation, self-restraint, the grand common-sense of the founder of Plymouth constitutes one of his most attractive characteristics. Too often, alas, have the reformers of the world, the founders of states and systems, had the one-sided vehemence of a John the Baptist instead of sharing something in the serene dignity and repose of the Master. Patience, humility, indomitable fortitude, unquenchable hope, purity of life and purpose, kindness of heart, sympathy for the weak and poor, fidelity to the death for all that is right, absolute abhorrence for all that is wrong, are they not worthy human qualities although their possessors forsooth be termed Puritans? But these Pilgrims although Puritans of the Puritans in their moral steadfastness, were also free in a large degree from the narrowness, intolerance and vulgarity that have elsewhere sometimes characterized those who held the name. How much of this freedom must we fairly attribute to their leader and teacher? See the effectiveness as well as the quality of his work! In England he not only made of his home a meeting house, but he provided its pastors and devoted his means and his life to his brethren who sought to reform what he and they believed the unscriptural practices of the Church established by law. When the little flock had gathered again after their hazardous flight to Holland, not only did his printing press at Leyden furnish to Scotland and England exactly the English Protestant literature which the Reformation most needed, but his wise eldership contributed no less than the genius of Robinson to preserve and shape a church worthy of being the pioneer church of New England.

In Plymouth—elder, advisor, Nestor of the little band, Dr. Dexter tells us there is every reason to believe the English books of his library were openly accessible to all and formed in reality the first Public Library of New England. A preacher who never had been a priest, a pastor who had never been an ordained clergyman, he was the fitting leader of a band of Independents who were to found a Church without a Bishop as well as a State without a King. Opposed to all ritualism and formalism, to any ceremonials not in their opinion plainly enjoined by the word of God, the Plymouth Colony, under the Elder's wise and able guidance preserved a moderation, sanity and freedom from extravagance and superstition not always prevalent in the other Puritan Colonies.

There have been many saints in Old England and in New England well beloved we may believe of God and man, but how many of his energy and of such influence on the future, who were so free from asceticism, fanaticism, ignorance and supersition? How many unembittered by such persecution, unnarrowed by such isolation? This "Chief of the Pilgrims" was a Puritan of the Puritans in all that makes puritanism a power for good, for purity, for piety, for valor, and a terror to evil doers, but in nothing else. The sourness, the barrenness, the vulgarities of puritanism seemed left out of Elder Brewster's composition.

And it is a pleasant thought, I am sure, for every member of our society to realize that the more the records are searched, the more clearly it appears that the spiritual leader of our Pilgrim Ancestors—the transplanter of the first New England Meeting House, the suggester of the first New England town meeting, was in everything throughout his life, in everything we know of his thought and action, a noble Christian gentleman.

MILITARY SERVICES OF ELDER BREWSTER *

The first formal military organization, distinct from the civil government, was formed February 27, (17 O. S.), 1621, Myles Standish being chosen captain, with full authority as commandant. (Prince's Annals, February, 1621; Palfrey's History of New England, i. p. 176; Goodwin's Pilgrim Republic, p. 115.)

This organization included "all those able to bear arms." Elder Brewster was a vigorous man of 54 years at the time of the Landing. He was not only a member of this military organization but he must have acted also as its chaplain.

Elder Brewster "was in no way unwilling to take his part and bear his burden with the rest." (Bradford's History of Plymouth Plantation, p. 413, ed. of 1856.)

"He partook with them of labor, hunger, and watching; his bible and arms being equally familiar to him; and he was always ready for any duty or suffering to which he was called." (Thatcher's History of Plymouth, p. 293.)

"He was able to use his armor as well as his bible." (Steele's Life of Brewster, p. 234.)

After one-half of the colonists had died in the "first sickness," in 1621, "Standish had under him twenty men. Imagine them drawn up in two ranks. In the first rank are seen Governor Bradford and Elder Brewster. The good Elder fights as he prays, and, though he would far rather convert an enemy than hurt him, he would not dream of allowing him the first fire." (Goodwin's Pilgrim Republic, p. 189.)

"If Elder Brewster prayed for protection against enemies, he took good care that his gun was ready and his sword sharp, so that he might do his part toward securing the blessing asked." (Goodwin's Pilgrim Republic, p. 110.)

Elder Brewster's two swords, his pistol, dagger and armor—head piece and corselet, "Costlett"—are mentioned in the inventory taken after his death. One of his swords was presented to the Massachu-

The General Register of the Society of Colonial Wars, 1899-1902, p. 576, states that Elder Brewster was "member and chaplain of the first military company under Captain Myles Standish and served against the Indians."

Bradford Gov<sup>r</sup>

Whereas William Brewster late of Plym gent deceased left onely two sonnes surviveing viz<sup>t</sup> Jonathan the Eldest and Love the yeonger And whereas the said William dyed intestate for ought can to this day appeare The said Jonathan and Love his sonnes when they returned from the buriall of their father to the house of M<sup>r</sup> Willm Bradford of Plymouth in the p<sup>r</sup>sence of m<sup>r</sup> Raph Partrich Pastor of Duxborrow m<sup>r</sup> John Reynor Teacher of the Church at Plymouth and m<sup>r</sup> Edward Buckley Pastor of the Church at Ma(rsh) feild and many others being exhorted to honor their Rev<sup>end</sup> father wth a peaceable pceeding about the division of his estate between them. The said Jonathan first answered for his part that although hee were the elder yet was willing to devide lands and goods equally betweene himself and brother. And if in case any difference should arrise betweene them that it might be soone suppressed said he heere are four of my fathers deere and auncient frends viz<sup>t</sup> m<sup>r</sup> Willm Bradford then Gov<sup>r</sup>nor of Plymouth m<sup>r</sup> Edward Winslow of Marshfeild m<sup>r</sup> Thomas Prence of Plymouth aforesaid and Captaine Miles Standish of Duxborrow. And if my brother please to accept my motion whereinsoever we shall differ we will stand to their award w<sup>ch</sup> shalbe as firme as if it had beene done by our father &c To all w<sup>ch</sup> the said Love Brewster condiscended to the greate satisfaccion of the whole Assembly the said freinds of his father being there also p<sup>r</sup>sent who willingly engaged themselves therein to the utmost of their power And whereas afterward difference arose betweene the said brethren Jonathan and Love in divers prticulars about the late dwelling house of their said father at Duxborrow wherein the said Love dwelt and had donn from his marriage to that instant also about certain accompt wherein Jonathan was made debtor to the estate in a large sume &c Hereupon according to prmise they referring themselves to the said speciall and most intimate frends of their said father the said Edward Winslow afterwards Gov<sup>r</sup>nor of Plymouth m<sup>r</sup> Willm Bradford m<sup>r</sup> Thomas Prence and Captaine Miles Standish aforesaid haveing heard divers thinges alleadged on Loves behalf to prove that the said House and half the Lands of the said Willm belonging thereunto aswell as any other the lands of the said Willm devided or to be devided wth an entire half part of the estate of the said Willm was given to the said Love and Sarah his wyfe upon a Covenant of Contract of marryage to be due at the death of the said Willm Brewster now deceased. All w<sup>ch</sup> was offerred to be proved legally if neede require by solemne prmise though not in writing The said Jonath(an) also offerring to take off upon oath the greatest prt of the said debts also &c The said Edwa(rd) Winslow Willm Bradford Thomas Prence & Captaine Miles Standish being well acquainted wth their said case aswell by divers thinges heard from their rev<sup>d</sup>end father in his life as by the evedence now offerred to be prduced on both sides determyned as followeth And first of all for the said debts w<sup>ch</sup> were alleadged against the said Jonathan the elder brother by the said Love the yonger as aforesaid we conceive that if their father had not acquitted them before his death yet hee would nev<sup>r</sup> have charged his Eldest sonn wth them in regard of his greate charge of children and so beleeveing it was donn actually or intently or both we discharged Jonathan of all the said debt his brother made him debtor to the estate aforesaid except foure pounds sterling w<sup>ch</sup> wee award him to pay his brother Love in consideracon of the wintering of some cattell w<sup>ch</sup> the said Jonathan had the sommering upon the division and for the dyett of Isaack Allerton a grandchild of the said Willm w<sup>ch</sup> he had placed wth his sonn Love to table And because hee was the first borne of his father we gave him his fathers Armes and also a two yeare old heiffer over and above his part of the devideables of the said estate. And for the Dwelling house aforesaid of the said Willm wherein the said Love Brewster resided we were so well acquainted wth the purpose of the s<sup>d</sup> Willm now deceased and the evidence offerred for prooffe seemed to us so strong as we beleeveing the said Willm had actually or intently or both given the said house to his sonn Love and Sarah his wyfe and their heires &c Wee the Edward William Thomas and Myles awarded the said dwelling house to the said Love and Sarah his wyfe and their heires &c together wth half the said Estate of Lands goods and cattells except before excepted and aswell such other lands as are not yet divided

THE BREWSTER BOOK

"The Brewster Book" is a very old manuscript containing records relating to Elder William Brewster, his wife Mary, son Jonathan, his wife Lucretia, the children of the latter and many of Jonathan<sup>2</sup> Brewster's descendants of the early generations. The book is now at the rooms of the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants at Boston.

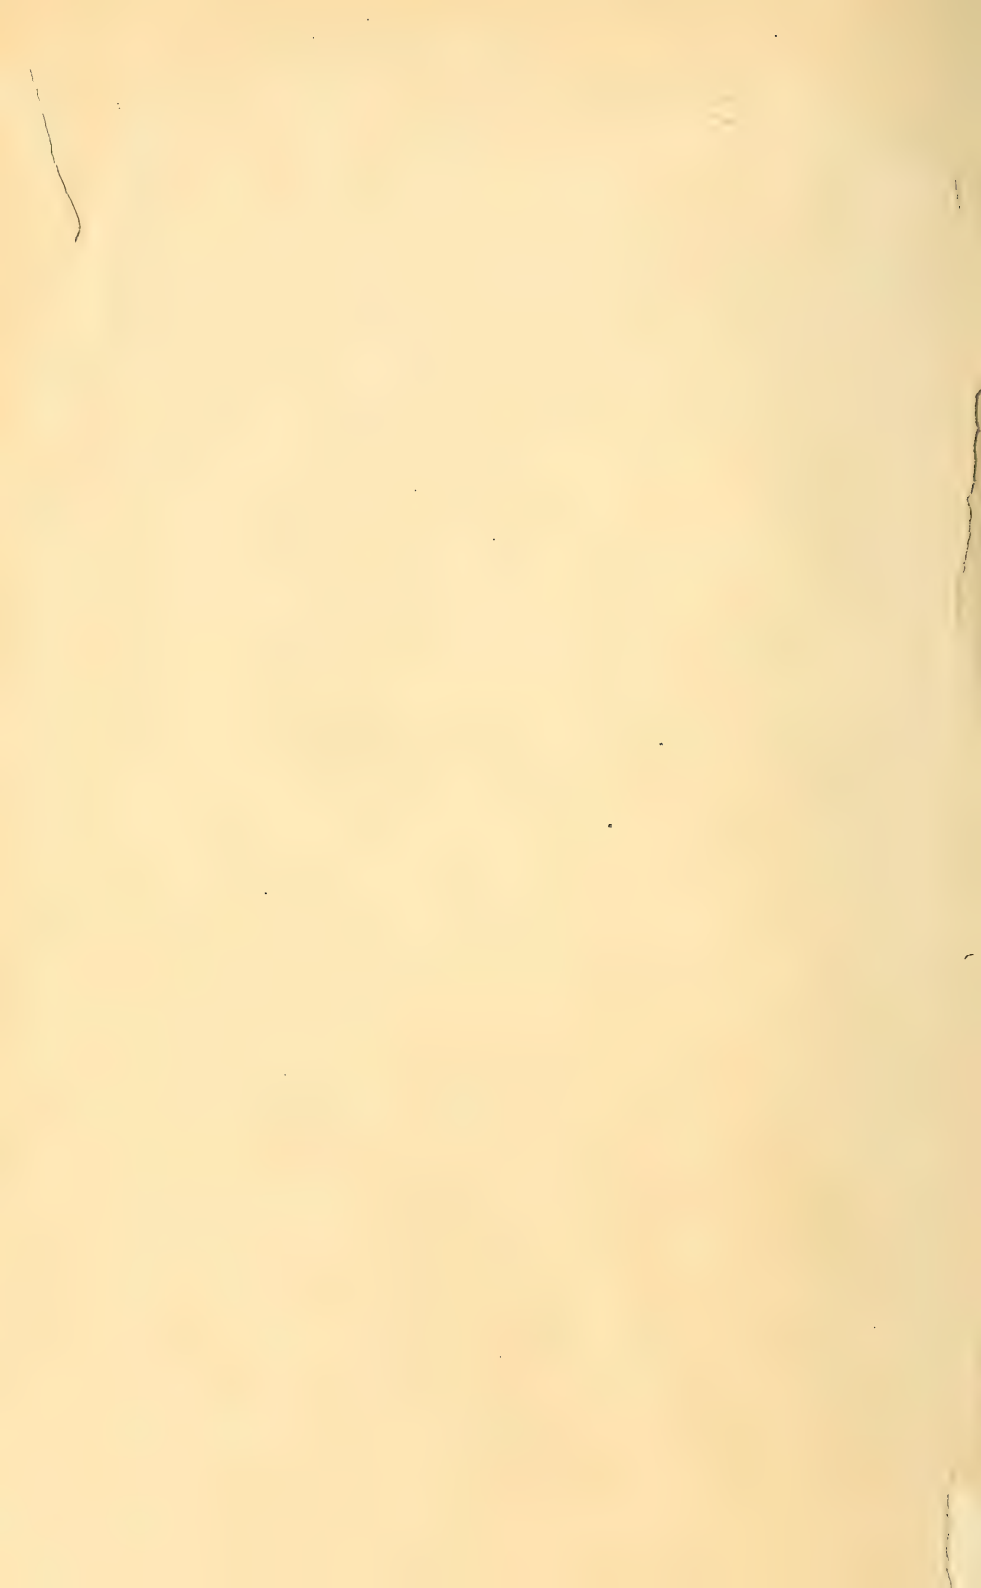

The following are extracts from a description of the book in The Mayflower Descendant, vol. i. pp. 1-8:

"The first sixty pages contain copies of a commission to Capt. John Mason, and of a license to Thomas Weston; an abstract of the patent of November, 1620; directions for transporting passengers to New England; lists of articles necessary for fitting out a fishing vessel, with the cost of the various items; and extracts from letters sent from New England and from Jamestown, Va. One of these letters was sent back in the Fortune in Dec., 1621, and the fact that all are said to be 'from' New England and Virginia is evidence that the copies were made while the book was still in England. Consequently it could not have come in the Mayflower. None of the handwriting has been identified as that of Elder William Brewster, but there are entries which seem to prove that at the time of his death the book was a part of his estate. On the fifth of June, 1644, the General Court appointed Jonathan and Love Brewster administrators of their father's estate, and on the eighteenth of the same month Jonathan sold to John Bemon a number of books which had been a part of the Elder's library. This and other sales are recorded in the handwriting of Jonathan on pages 61, 62 and 63, immediately following the entries of the original owner. As these sales are the earliest entries made by Jonathan, it is probable that the book had come into his possession at his father's death.

"Near the end of the book, on pages 217 to 237, both inclusive, is an extract from Campanella's De Monarchia Hispanica Discursus, the handwriting closely resembling that of the entries on the first sixty pages. After the marriage of his daughter Mary to John Turner, Senior, the importance of a record of his family seems to have occurred to Jonathan Brewster; and he took the book, turned it upside down, and began such a record on page 216, opposite the extract from Campanella."

FIRST GENERATION

FIRST GENERATION

1 ELDER WILLIAM<sup>1</sup> BREWSTER. "Early Generations of the Brewster Family," by Mrs. Lucy Hall Greenlaw of Boston, Mass., in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, vol. liii. pp. 109-10, contains the following summary of what is now known of the principal events in the life of Elder William Brewster:

"Elder William Brewster . . . was born during the last half of the year 1566 or the first half of 1567. The date of his birth is determined by an affidavit made at Leyden, June 25, 1609, in which he, his wife Mary and son Jonathan declare their ages to be respectively 42, 40 and 16 years. (N. E. Register. xviii, 18-20). Bradford says that he was 'nere fourscore years of age (if not all out) when he dyed.' This statement agrees with the affidavit. The place of his birth is not known, but is supposed to have been Scrooby in Nottinghamshire, England. His father, William Brewster, was appointed by Archbishop Sandys, in January, 1575-76, receiver of Scrooby and bailiff of the manor house in that place belonging to the Archbishop, to have life tenure of both offices. The parish registers of Scrooby do not begin until 1695, and no record of Brewster's birth, baptism, or marriage was discovered by William Paver, a distinguished local antiquary, who held a commission for nearly a quarter of a century to report all items that he found relating to the Pilgrims.

"William Brewster matriculated at Peterhouse,* Cambridge, December 3, 1580, but it does not appear that he remained there long enough to take his degree. (Brown's Pilgrim Fathers of New England. 55). He is next found as a 'discreete and faithfull' assistant of William Davison, Secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth, accompanying that gentleman on his embassy to the Netherlands in August, 1585, and serving him at court after his return, until his downfall in 1587. After the retirement of Davison, Brewster returned to Scrooby, where he lived 'in good esteeme amongst his freinds, and y<sup>e</sup> gentlemen of those parts, espetically the godly & religious,' doing much good 'in promoting and furthering Religion.' In 1590 he was appointed administrator of the estate of his father who died in the summer of that year, leaving a widow, Prudence.* His father was 'Post' at Scrooby at the time of his death, and it is said that the Elder's grandfather held the same office. (Arber's Story of the Pilgrim Fathers, 50; Brown's Pilgrim Fathers of N. E., 54). Sir John Stanhope, who became Postmaster General in June, 1590, appointed one Samuel Bevercotes to succeed the deceased Brewster. Through the influence of Davison, however, the old post master's son, William, was soon appointed to the office, which he held until September 30, 1607 (O. S.).† His residence at Scrooby was the old manor house. (Hunter's Founders of New Plymouth, 1854, 17-18; Raine's History of the Parish of Blyth, 129-30). In this house the members of the Pilgrim Church were accustomed to meet on the Lord's day, where Brewster 'with great loue entertained them when they came, making prouission for them to his great charge.'

"The Pilgrims, attempting to remove to Holland in the latter part of 1607, were imprisoned at Boston through the treachery of * "His father's name was William and his mother's Prudence, and no other child of theirs was living in 1590. His father appears to have lived in Scrooby when this son was about five, for a William Brewster was assessed to the subsidy of 1571, in the township of Scrooby-cum-Ranskill, on goods valued at three pounds. Four or five years later, . . . this William Brewster, Sr., became the Archbishop of York's receiver and bailiff, which evidently involved residence in the manor house. We lack proof of his origin, and the search is especially difficult because it runs back of existing parish registers. Clearly there was in the neighborhood a family of his name, and of a station making his connection with it not improbable."—The England and Holland of the Pilgrims, 253-4.

† The office was then a court appointment. Brewster was styled the "Post" of Scrooby, and was master of the court mails. The mails were then only accessible to those connected with the court. Not until 1644 were they thrown open to the public. See Goodwin's Pilgrim Republic, 17, and Steele's Life of Brewster, 115-6.

"Some time in or, possibly, before 1588, William Brewster, Sr., the archbishop's legal representative at the manor house, was appointed to the additional office of postmaster under the Crown. . . . When Brewster, the father, died, in 1590, his son took his place as post. Such a postmaster, however, was not what the name now suggests. Letters then sent by post usually, if not always, were government missives, passed from messenger to messenger at each station; personal correspondence, so far as it existed, being left to go by private hand."—The England and Holland of the Pilgrims, 237, 320.

the master of the ship that was engaged to transport them. Bradford says that Brewster 'was y<sup>e</sup> cheefe of those that were taken at Boston, and suffered y<sup>e</sup> greatest loss; and of y<sup>e</sup> seuen that were kept longest in prison, and after bound ouer to y<sup>e</sup> assises.' Through Bradford also, we learn that Brewster, after he reached Holland, suffered many hardships and spent most of his means in providing for his 'many children.' He was not so well fitted as the other Pilgrims for the hard labor which became their common lot, yet he bore his condition cheerfully. During the latter part of the twelve years spent in Holland, he increased his income very much by teaching and by the profits from a printing press which he by the help of some friends, set up at Leyden. At the end of that time, 'for sundrie weightie and solid reasons,' which are duly set forth in Bradford's History, among which '(and which was not least)' was a true missionary spirit, the Church at Leyden resolved to emigrate to Virginia. Brewster, the Elder of the Church, who had been chosen to that office during the Pilgrims' stay at Leyden, was 'desired' by those chosen to go first, 'to goe with them,' while John Robinson, the pastor, stayed with the majority who should follow later. Thus it happened that we find Elder Brewster, his wife Mary and two young sons among the passengers of that now famous vessel, the Mayflower, which dropped anchor in Plymouth harbor, December 16, 1620 (O. S.). At Plymouth Brewster bore an important part in establishing the Pilgrim republic, not shrinking from even the severest manual labor, and 'when the church had no other minister, he taught twise euery saboth, and y<sup>e</sup> both powerfully and profitably, to y<sup>e</sup> great contentment of y<sup>e</sup> hearers.'

"His wife, Mary, whose maiden name has not been discovered, 'dyed at Plymouth in new England the 17th of Aprill, 1627.' (Brewster Book).* Bradford says that, though she died 'long before' her husband, 'yet she dyed aged,' but by her affidavit of 1609 she was less than sixty years of age and it is probable that her 'great & continuall labours, with others crosses, and sorrows, hastened it (i. e. old age) before y<sup>e</sup> time.' Elder Brewster survived his wife many years and 'dyed at Plymouth in New England the 10th of Aprill, 1644.' (Brewster Book).* . . . August 20, 1645, a final division of the Elder's estate was made by Bradford, Winslow, Prence, and Standish, between 'Jonathan and Loue his onely children remayneing.'†

* "Bradford speaks of Brewster's 'many children,' yet only six have been discovered. If there were others, it is probable that they died young. The Robert Brewster who matriculated at Leyden University, May 12, 1619, æ. 20, may have been related to the Elder, but no evidence has been found that he was his son. Rev. Nathaniel Brewster, who was graduated at Harvard College in 1642, and later was of Brookhaven, L. I., was living at the time of the settlement of Elder Brewster's estate, when Bradford, Winslow, Prence, and Standish declare that 'William Brewster late of Plym gent deceased left onely two sonnes survineing vizt Jonathan the Eldest and Loue the yeonger.' [See Elder William Brewster's Inventory, etc.] Edward Brewster, who appears in the list of members of the Virginia Company as 'son of William,' was probably the son of that William who died in Virginia in 1607. If he were a son of Elder William, he would have been younger than Jonathan, who is called 'eldest son' and 'first borne,' and consequently too young to be a member of the Virginia Company and to serve as captain of Lord De La Warr's bodyguard in Virginia in 1610. Elizabeth, wife of Rev. Samuel Fuller of Middleboro', is said to have been a Brewster. She died November 4, 1713, 'very aged.' She was not a daughter of Jonathan or of Love, and she does not appear in the division of Elder Brewster's estate. If she were a daughter of Elder Brewster, the absence of her name in the settlement might be explained by the fact that, at that period, daughters were not heirs to intestate estates when there were sons living. It will be noticed, however, that the name of Elizabeth Brewster does not appear in the division of cattle, May 22, 1627 (a month after the death of the Elder's wife), when even the very youngest children were counted; and also that Bradford states in 1650 that the Elder's 'daughters which came over after him are dead.'"—N. E. Reg., liii. 111.

SECOND GENERATION

SECOND GENERATION

2 JONATHAN<sup>2</sup> BREWSTER (William<sup>1</sup>), came in the ship Fortune in November, 1621. He "married Lucretia Oldham. of Darby. the 10th Aprill. 1624." (See illustration of facsimile of pages in the Brewster Book.) "She was probably a sister of John Oldham, who came to Plymouth on his 'perticular,' about 1623, and who was called 'brother' by Jonathan."* Jonathan Brewster died in Connecticut, August 7, 1659, and was buried in the Brewster Cemetery at Brewster's Neck, Preston. His wife, Lucretia, died March 4, 1678-9.

Mr. Morton Dexter's recent publication, The England and Holland of the Pilgrims, pages 514-15, referring to an entry made in 1610, in the Leyden (Holland) archives (Reg. van Overledenen Personen, iii. 50), says: "On Nov. 27 there was buried in St. Peter's 'a child of Jonathan William's son, living on the church street.' If we knew that Jonathan Brewster had been married, the natural interpretation of this entry would refer it to a death in his family, which lived on that street; and if the name were Jonathan William's son Brewster, as it is on his admission to citizenship in 1617, it would be clear that he is referred to. Jonathan was not a Dutch name, and appears only once or twice during many years in connection with Englishmen in Leyden, and with no one else likely to have been referred to at this time. In view of the common Dutch custom of designating a man merely as his father's son, omitting the last name in each case, there seems no doubt that Jonathan Brewster is meant; although no record of his marriage ever has appeared, and at this time he cannot have been much over seventeen years old, which renders his having been married long enough to have a child improbable, although not impossible. On the other hand, he certainly buried his wife on May 10, 1619. (Reg. Ov. 4, 73 vers.) He may have had an early attachment in England, and expediency and convenience may have led to marriage, even at his early age. Such marriages were not unknown. Dorothy May was only sixteen when she became Mrs. William Bradford. On the whole, therefore, it seems quite certain that Jonathan Brewster had been married and that this was his child." On page 606 Mr. Dexter states that, while at Leyden, Jonathan lived at Pieterskerkhof, and that he was a ribbonmaker.

"About 1630 Jonathan removed his family to Duxbury, from which place he was deputy to the General Court, Plymouth Colony, 1639, '41, '42, '43 and '44. Thence he removed to New London, Conn., about 1649 (admitted inhabitant February 25, 1649-50), settling in that part later established as Norwich, his farm lying in both towns. Here he was deputy to the General Court of the Colony of Connecticut, 1650, '55, '56, '57 and '58. According to a letter * dated Sept. 1, 1656, written by Jonathan to his sister-in-law, Sarah, widow of Love Brewster, he and his whole family 'resolved for old England' the following year. It is possible that two of his sons, William and Jonathan, did settle in England, but the remainder of the family continued here."—N. E. Reg. liii. 112.

Winsor's History of Duxbury, Mass., p. 235, referring to Jonathan Brewster, says: "He was frequently the town's deputy, and one of the principal men in the formation of its settlement, and in the establishment of its church; he sometimes practised before the Court as an attorney, and is also styled gentleman."

The following are extracts from Miss Caulkins' History of New London, Conn., pp. 65-6, 276:

"Jonathan Brewster settled first in Duxbury and was several times representative from that place. Subsequently he engaged in the coasting trade, and was master and probably owner of a small vessel plying from Plymouth along the coast of Virginia. In this way he became acquainted with Pequot Harbor, and entered the river to trade with the natives. . . . He was 'Clarke of the Towne of Pequitt' in Sept., 1649.

"The first town † grants to Brewster were in September, '49. He established a trading-house with the Mogeigans, at a point on the east side of the river opposite to their principal settlement. At this place, which is still called by his name, Brewster's Neck, he laid out for himself a large farm. The deed of the land was given him by Uncas, in substance as follows:

"'April 25, 1650. I, Unquas, Sachem of Mauhekon, doe give freely unto Jonathan Brewster of Pequett, a tract of land, being a plaine of arable land, bounded on the south side with a great Coave called Poccatanocke, on the north with the old Pocatuck path that goes to the Trading Coave, &c. For, and in consideration thereof, the said J. B. binds himself and his heirs to keep a house for trading goods with the Indians.'

"(Signed by the Sachem and witnessed by William Baker and John Fossiker).

"This deed was confirmed by the town, Nov. 30th, 1652, and its bounds determined. It comprised the whole neck on which the trading-house stood, '450 acres laid out by the measurers.' Actually 600 or 700.

"No probate papers relating to his estate have been found, but bills of sale are recorded, dated in 1658, conveying all his property in the town plot, and his house and land at Poquetannuck, with his movables, cattle and swine—to wit 4 oxen, 12 cows, 8 yearlings and 20 swine,' to his son, Benjamin Brewster, and his son-in-law, John Picket. Feb. 14th, 1661-2, Mr. Picket relinquishes his interest in the assignment to his brother-in-law, stipulating only 'That my mother-in-law, Mrs. Brewster, the late wife of my father, Mr. Jonathan Brewster, shall have a full and competent means out of his estate during her life, from the said B. B. at her own dispose freely and fully to command at her own pleasure.' . . .

"Mrs. Lucretia Brewster, the wife of Jonathan, was evidently a woman of note and respectability among her compeers. She has always the prefix of honor (Mrs. or Mistress) and is usually presented to view in some useful capacity—an attendant upon the sick and dying as nurse, doctress, or midwife—or a witness to wills and other important transactions."

In 1637 Jonathan Brewster was a military commissioner in the Pequot War (Winsor's Hist. Duxbury, p. 90; Peirce's Col. Lists p. 84, and Genl. Reg. Soc. Col. Wars, 1899-1902, p. 576); a member of the Duxbury Committee to raise forces in the Narragansett Alarm of 1642 (Winsor's Duxbury p. 90), and a member of Captain Myles Standish's Duxbury Company in the military enrollment of 1643. (Peirce's Col. Lists, p. 75, and Genl. Reg. Soc. Col. Wars, p. 576.)

The descendants erected in the Brewster Cemetery, in 1855, a plain granite shaft about eight feet high, to the memory of Jonathan Brewster and his wife, Lucretia. A part of the inscription on the monument, referring to Jonathan Brewster, says: "History speaks of his acts," and to Lucretia Brewster there is the following:

"A noble specimen of an enlightened, heroic Christian gentlewoman." The footstone that marked the grave of Jonathan Brewster is still in existence and it now leans against the modern monument. It is a small red sandstone and the inscription on it is "Mr Jonathan Brewster," with a well executed figure of a harp over the lettering, the workmanship being superior to that found on gravestones erected several hundred years ago. It has been said that "it may have come from the prolific and skillful chisel of Matthew Griswold, the first settler of Lyme, who wrought the celebrated Lady Fenwick monument." The headstone that was erected at the grave of Jonathan Brewster, was broken into fragments and they disappeared many years ago.

The Brewster Cemetery is at Brewster's Neck, between Poquetanuck Cove and the Thames River, in Connecticut. It contains about one square acre and is surrounded by a substantial stone wall, which was rebuilt in 1903, and it is now in good condition. Many of Jonathan Brewster's descendants are buried there.

4 FEAR<sup>2</sup> BREWSTER (William<sup>1</sup>), came in the ship Ann, in July, 1623. She married before May 22, 1627, as second wife, ISAAC ALLERTON, who died at New Haven, Conn., between February 1st and 12th, 1658-9. She died at Plymouth, December 12, 1634.

Isaac Allerton was of the Allerton family of Suffolk, England, and was born in 1585 or 1586, "as we learn from a deposition made September 26, 1639, in which he is described as 'Isaacke Allerton, of New Plimmouth in New England, Merchant, aged about 53 years.' " He came in the Mayflower, in 1620, accompanied by his first wife, Mary Norris, and children Bartholomew, Remember, and Mary.†

"He is named in the Leyden Records as being 'of London.' . . . He was admitted to citizenship in Leyden, February 7, 1614. He was one of the four signers of the letter from the Leyden Church to Carver and Cushman, June 1, 1620. . . . He was reputed to have been at one time the richest man of the colony, and was from the outset active in its affairs. When Bradford was chosen governor, after Carver's death in the spring of 1621, Allerton was made assistant, or deputy governor, an office which he held alone until 1624, when the number of assistants was increased to five, and in 1633 to seven, of whom he was one. He was one of the 'Undertakers' in 1627, and 'made five voyages to England as agent for the colony. . . . In 1632-33 he had a trading-post at Machias, which was pillaged by the French. In 1635 his fishing station at Marblehead was burned.' "

"Isaac Allerton was the only one of the Pilgram Fathers who became a resident of New York. . . . He was actively engaged in business in the Massachusetts colonies from 1631 until 1637 or 1638. The New Amsterdam Records show that he was there in February, 1639, and he probably became a resident in the fall of 1638, thus being one of the first English settlers, . . . and from that time for twenty years Isaac Allerton played a prominent and honorable part in the political and business life of the Dutch colony. During the earlier years of his life there he was associated in business with Govert Loockermans, one of the leading and most interesting figures in the history of those times, and it is quite possible that he lived at Loockerman's house on the Hoogh Straet (the present Stone Street) when at Amsterdam. He was then a widower, the first known mention of his third wife, Joanna, being in 1644. . . . In April, 1647, Isaac Allerton purchased from one Philip de Truy the land lying between the Highway, now Pearl Street, and the shore line of the East River, which was then west of the present location of Water Street. This strip, which was probably not more than a few feet in width, extended from the present location of Peck Slip southerly, nearly if not quite, to where Fulton Street now is. At the upper end of this property, where it appears to have been the widest and where a small bay or cove ran into the land just north of it, he increased the width by filling in and building a wharf, and on this he erected a large building for a warehouse, with a smaller one adjoining it on the west for a residence, and from that time on until long after his death 'Allerton's Buildings' were a prominent landmark in the Dutch city. . . . All the available evidence tends to prove that Allerton's buildings and wharf covered nearly the site now occupied by Nos. 6, 8, 10 and 12 Peck Slip.

"Although Isaac Allerton became a resident of New Haven at about the same time when he purchased the lands of de Truy, seats in the Meeting House there being assigned to him and his wife on March 10, 1646, and where he built himself 'a grand House on the Creek with four Porches,' the site of which, on the corner of State and Fair Streets, has been marked with a tablet and inscription by the New Haven Colony Historical Society, the New Amsterdam Records show that he maintained his business and residence there until his death, the court records showing him to have been present in court in July, 1658. . . . Isaac Allerton continued to have intimate and friendly relations with the Massachusetts colonies after leaving Plymouth, a large share of the trade between them and the Dutch passing through his hands, and he was always active in assisting natives of New England, or even giving his personal guarantee for the purpose of avoiding quarrels between his countrymen and the people of New Amsterdam.

"Great interest attaches to Isaac Allerton's connection with Virginia. For many years he had been trading there, carrying them grain, flour, and other products of the northern colonies, and bringing back the tobacco which formed almost their only crop, and in 1650 he established a plantation for himself in what is now Westmoreland County, upon the Machoatick River, now called the Machodoc, a small tributary to the Potomac.

"He was the last survivor of those who are generally counted the leaders of the Pilgrims. . . ."

A tablet was erected to the memory of Isaac Allerton June 1, 1904, at No. 8 Peck Slip, New York City, by the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the State of New York.

There is a transcript of Isaac Allerton's will and inventory in The Mayflower Descendant, vol. ii. pp. 155-57.

5 LOVE<sup>2</sup> BREWSTER (William<sup>1</sup>) came in the ship Mayflower, in 1620, with his parents and brother Wrestling. He married at Plymouth, May 15, 1634 (O. S.), SARAH, daughter of William COLLIER,* of Duxbury. Love Brewster died at Duxbury. In Governor Bradford's List of the Mayflower Passengers, referring to

* William Collier, born in England, was one of the "Merchant Adventurers," his name being subscribed to an agreement made between the Merchant Adventurers of London and the Plymouth Colony, Nov. 15, 1626. He came to New England in 1633; was elected an assistant councillor Elder Brewster's family, he says: "his son Love lived till this year. 1650. and dyed, . . ." His will is dated October 6, 1650 (O. S.). (Plymouth Colony Probate Rec., vol. i. folio 89.)* His widow, Sarah, married after September 1, 1656, Richard Parke of Cambridge, Mass., who died there, in 1665. "The Plymouth Colony Records show that Sarah returned to Duxbury and was living there 2/12 March, 1679/80," and the following entry is recorded in the First Book of the Plymouth First Church Records, part iii. p. 22, dated 1691, under the heading "members dyed": "mris Sarah Parke, widow, April 26: in her 76th yeare." She died at Plymouth (Mayf. Des., ii. 115, iii. 192, iv. 128).

Love Brewster was admitted a freeman of the Plymouth Colony March 2, 1635-36; early removed from Plymouth to Duxbury and "devoted himself to the cultivation of the paternal acres in Duxbury, forming there with his father a family home, . . . where, in due time, a portion of the estate became his own and his children's inheritance." Elder Brewster's house was included in the "portion of the estate," in which house Love and his family lived.

In 1637 Love Brewster's name appears among those who volunteered to serve in the Pequot War from the Colony of New Plymouth (Winsor's Hist. Duxbury, p. 90, and Peirce's Col. Lists, p. 84), and he was a member of Captain Myles Standish's Duxbury Company in the military enrollment of 1643 (Winsor's Duxbury 93; Peirce's Col. Lists, 75, and Genl. Reg. Soc. Col. Wars, 1899-1902, p. 576).

He was grand juryman from Duxbury in 1643 (Peirce's Col. Lists, 53), and in 1645 he was one of the proprietors of the extension to Duxbury, afterwards known as Bridgewater (Winsor's Duxbury, 348).

to the Governor of Plymouth Colony, 1634, and re-elected to the same office every year until 1666, except 1653, and was one of two commissioners appointed by the Plymouth Colony to form a confederation of the New England Colonies, 1643. "He appears to have been the wealthiest man in Duxbury, being rated the highest on the tax list." "He was a distinguished early settler and a great benefactor to the Colony."

* The date of Love Brewster's will, October 6, 1650, old style, becomes October 16, 1650, in new style. The inventory of his estate was taken January 31, 1650, old style, which is equivalent to February 10, 1651, new style, as the legal year then did not begin until March 25. His death probably occurred only a few days before the taking of the inventory. See Love Brewster's Will and Inventory, which follows, and Mayf. Des., i. 162. (A typographical error in the last named publication makes the date of Love Brewster's will Oct. 11, new style, instead of Oct. 16). Also see notes, Old Style and New Style Dating, in this book.

THIRD GENERATION

6 BENJAMIN<sup>3</sup> BREWSTER (Jonathan<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>), married "Ann Darte the last Daye of febeare: 1659-1660" (Brewster Book and Norwich, Conn., T. Rec.), who "may have been the widow of Ambrose Dart of Boston who married 'Anne Adis daughter of William Addis of Cape Ann 24th—4th month,' 1653." "Ann Brewster Departed this life—the wife of Benjamin Brewster may the : 9 : 1709." "The above Named Benjamin Brewster Died in Norwich y<sup>e</sup> 14th of Sept: 1710 & was Buried on Brewster Plain." (See illustration of facsimile of pages in the Brewster Book).

"Benjamin Brewster settled upon the homstead of his father at Brewster's Neck, which he acquired from his father and brother-in-law, John Picket. This farm was originally in the town of New London, but by the alteration of boundaries and the formation of new towns was afterwards successively included in the towns of Norwich, Preston, Groton, and Ledyard. He was a man of prominence, serving as deputy to the General Court of the Colony of Connecticut, 1668, '89, '90, '92, '93, '94, 95, '96, '97, lieutenant of the New London Troop, 1673, and captain of the military company of Norwich, 1693.

"The Brewster Book . . . undoubtedly had been in his custody from the death of his father to his own decease . . . and his son Daniel, . . . it is supposed, succeeded him as custodian of the Book."—N. E. Reg., liii. 283-4.

7 Colonel ISAAC<sup>3</sup> ALLERTON (Fear<sup>2</sup> Brewster, William<sup>1</sup>), married first, ELIZABETH ———. "As early as 1652 he had a wife Elizabeth." (N. E. Reg., xlv. 292); married second, in Virginia, about 1663, ELIZABETH, daughter of Captain Thomas and Margaret (Herbert) WILLOUGHBY, of Lower Norfolk, Va., and widow of Major George COLCLOUGH. Isaac Allerton died between October 25th and December 30th, 1702.

Isaac Allerton lived many years with his grandfather, Elder William Brewster, by whom he was being educated. After graduating from Harvard College in 1650, he became associated in business with his father, Isaac Allerton, Sr., at New Amsterdam, New Haven, Conn., in Virginia, and elsewhere, and after the death of the latter in 1659, Isaac, Jr., settled in Virginia, where he became a wealthy and influential planter and "was prominent in the civil and military affairs of the colony."

"His plantation is laid down on Hermann's map of Virginia and Maryland, made in 1670."

He was a justice of Northumberland County, Va., in 1663; was several times a member of the House of Burgesses, and a member of the Governor's Council; was major under Col. John Washington (great-grandfather of President George Washington), in the expedition against the Indians in 1675; was appointed with Col. St. Leger Codd and Col. George Mason to superintend the erection of a garri-son or store-house on the Potomac River in 1679; was lieutenant colonel of the Westmoreland Militia in 1683, and in 1699 was naval officer and receiver of the Virginia duties in Westmoreland County, including Yeocomico River.

In the will of "Hon. Isaac Allerton, of Westmoreland County, Va.," dated October 25, 1702, and proved December 30th, following, he mentions his son Willoughby Allerton, daughter "Elizabeth Starr als. Heirs," daughter Sarah Lee and grandson Allerton Newton, "daughter Traverse" and granddaughters Elizabeth, Rebecca, and Winifred Traverse.

15 BENJAMIN<sup>4</sup> BREWSTER (Benjamin<sup>3</sup>, Jonathan<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>), married first, December 17, 1696, MARY SMITH, who died at Lebanon, Conn., March 27, 1747, in her 74th year; married second, JOYCE ———, for whom he provided in his will, dated January 14, 1755. He died between that date and February 6, 1755.

Benjamin Brewster was an original proprietor of Lebanon, having removed there from Norwich, Conn., after the birth of his first child. He was appointed quartermaster of the troop in New London County, May 15, 1718, by Gurdon Saltonstall, Governor of Connecticut. Benjamin's descendant, Mrs. Mary (Porter) Spaford of Turnerville, Conn., owns the original commission, the accompanying illustration being a copy.

QUARTERMASTER'S COMMISSION TO BENJAMIN<sup>4</sup> BREWSTER

16 ISAAC<sup>4</sup> ALLERTON (Isaac<sup>3</sup> Allerton, Fear<sup>2</sup> Brewster, William<sup>1</sup>), married ELIZABETH ———.

"He may have accompanied his father to Virginia when a child, but returned to New Haven, Conn., about 1683, and lived there and probably at Norwich, in the same state, during the remainder of his life." He was a farmer and dealer in country produce.

Children, born at New Haven:

In his will, dated Jany. 16, 1723-4, and proved March 25, 1724, he calls himself "Willoughby Allerton, Gent of the County of Westmoreland in Virginia." He leaves his estate to his wife Hannah and children Elizabeth and Isaac. He also bequeaths to his son Isaac his "scarlett cloak with the horse furniture" and requires that his sword be sent to England and a new blade put in, also a scabbard and a false scabbard be made for his son Isaac. As Hannah Keene's first husband, John Bushrod, died Feb. 6, 1719, it is not possible that she was the mother of Willoughby Allerton's two children mentioned in his will.

In 1699 Willoughby Allerton was lieutenant colonel of the West moreland Militia, and in 1711 he served as deputy collector of customs for York River.

Children:

- i ELIZABETH<sup>5</sup>, m. ——— Quills. Chn., both living 1739:

DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM<sup>3</sup> BREWSTER

They lived at Duxbury.

Children, recorded there:

- i SAMUEL<sup>5</sup>, b. Apr. 5, 1708; was living in 1755.
- ii MERCY, twin of Samuel; m. Aug. 18, 1731, Nathaniel Woodcock, of Attleborough, son of Israel and Elizabeth (Gatchel) Woodcock. Chn., rec. at Attleborough:

in Exeter Cemetery, Lebanon. The inscriptions on their grave-stones read: "Here lies the body of Mr William Brewster | he had a good Character | was born in Duxbury | Lately removed to Lebanon | where he exchanged this life in hope of a better | Dec<sup>br</sup> 26, 1768 in y<sup>e</sup> 87 year of age," and "Here lies the body of M<sup>rs</sup> Hopestill Brewster | Who after a pious & Virtuous life | departed March 25, 1773 | in y<sup>e</sup> Comfortable hope of a happy Immortality | in y<sup>e</sup> 86th year of her age."

William Brewster lived at Duxbury. Previous to 1761 he and his wife removed to Wrentham, Mass., where they lived a brief time and then removed to the home of their son, Ichabod Brewster, at Lebanon.

The accompanying illustration is a facsimile of an original deed, dated the fifth of August, 1734, by which William<sup>4</sup> Brewster (William<sup>3</sup>, Love<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>), "of Duxborough in y<sup>e</sup> County of Plymouth in y<sup>e</sup> Province of y<sup>e</sup> Massachusetts Bay in New England. . . . for & in consideration of y<sup>e</sup> love good will & affection which I have & do bear unto my Dutiful son Ichabod Brewster of s<sup>d</sup> Duxborough in s<sup>d</sup> Province," conveys to his son Ichabod Brewster "a Certain forty Acre lot of land be it more or less lying & being Contiguous to y<sup>e</sup> line Between y<sup>e</sup> Towns of Duxborough & Pembroke in y<sup>e</sup> County aboves<sup>d</sup> s<sup>d</sup> lot is one of y<sup>e</sup> Forty acre Lots of land which Belonged to y<sup>e</sup> first Division of y<sup>e</sup> Commons which Belonged to y<sup>e</sup> Town of Duxborough aboves<sup>d</sup> & it is y<sup>e</sup> second lot in number in y<sup>e</sup> s<sup>d</sup> Division & was layd out Anno Domini. 1710."

Winsor's History of Duxbury, page 39, refers to the first division of the commons mentioned in this deed, as follows:

" ' 1710, January 30: Voted, that every proprietor of a lot, with a dwelling thereon, if he had been a townsman ten years, should have 40 acres allotted to him; and those, who have had previous grants, to have enough more to make up the 40 acres.' . . . These commons (salt meadows) were divided into 33 lots of five shares each, and not until June 16, 1712, were they distributed by lot to the proprietors." William Brewster, Sen., William Brewster, Jr., Benj. Brewster, Nathl. Brewster and John Brewster were among the 165 proprietors named.

The following is indorsed on the deed: "Receiv<sup>d</sup> Dec 17-1735 & Record<sup>d</sup> with the Records of Deeds for the County of Plym<sup>e</sup>—Book 30—Fol<sup>o</sup> 64—J. Cotton Reg<sup>r</sup>—" con Brewster built an addition to the little Holmes house and, when it passed into the possession of his son, Thomas<sup>5</sup> Brewster, he again enlarged it by building a T. This homestead passed to Thomas' son Elisha, and it is now occupied by the family of Elisha<sup>6</sup> Brewster.

Elisha Brewster and Job Barstow, the witnesses, were brother and brother-in-law of Ichabod<sup>5</sup> Brewster.

The original deed was in the possession of William<sup>4</sup> Brewster's descendants in a direct line, as follows: Ichabod<sup>5</sup> Brewster, Ichabod<sup>6</sup> Brewster, Lot Edward<sup>7</sup> Brewster, Angeline<sup>8</sup> (Brewster) Mellen, Emma Brewster<sup>9</sup> (Mellen) Woodward. The last named gave it to her cousin, Emma C. Brewster<sup>9</sup> Jones—the compiler of this book, and she gave it to the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants, at Boston, where it now is.

In 1780 a farm-hand, employed at this homestead, conceived the idea of attaching curved pieces of wood to the legs of a common high-back chair for the comfort of the invalid lady of the house—the widow of Deacon Wrestling Brewster. This, the first and now celebrated rocking-chair, is still preserved at "Woodside."

Wrestling Brewster was a farmer and cordwainer, and he served for many years as a deacon of the church at Kingston. He is designated as "Wrestling Brewster 3rd" in the marriage certificate and court records.

Extracts from Lot E. Brewster's MS., written in 1845:

"At the time of, or soon after the marriage of Ichabod Brewster, he and his wife resided at Pembroke, Mass., where they continued until May, 1743, when they removed to Lebanon, Conn., with their children Bathsheba, Lydia and William. This removal was considered an arduous undertaking and a hazardous enterprise, for Lebanon was then only about a day's journey from the Indian frontier of hostile tribes. The removal proved to be fortunate for Ichabod, as he prospered in his new location. His first purchase in Lebanon was a new farm with a small portion already cultivated, and on which a dwelling-house had been built. To this farm he later added to his possessions by other purchases of land, not only in Lebanon but in the adjoining townships of Colchester and Hebron, until his domain became greatly enlarged. The house he and his family entered upon their arrival in Lebanon and in which he and his wife lived and died, was built several years previous to 1743; is a two-story frame building of nine or ten rooms; is in good condition, and stands fronting the East, on gently elevated ground, with a fine view of the meadows and cultivated fields surrounding it. The writer has dwelt longer upon this than may be interesting, but the reader may excuse him when informed that in that dwelling-house he drew the first breath of life and there spent the happy days of his childhood and youth, and this ancient homestead is endeared to him by the fondest recollections.

THE HOME OF ICHABOD<sup>S</sup> BREWSTER, LEBANON, CONNECTICUT
Built several years previous to 1743

“Ichabod Brewster sustained a character of integrity and all the moral virtues that should adorn the Christian man. The benevolence of his heart was exemplified in his kindness toward his parents, who, until about 1760, resided at the ancient home of the Brewsters at Duxbury, Mass. All the children of William and Hopestill (Wadsworth) Brewster had removed to distant parts of the country and they were left alone. Old age with its infirmities had advanced upon them and there was not a child near at hand to lean upon for aid, when the benevolent and filial spirit of their son Ichabod caused him to remove his parents to his home at Lebanon, where he appropriated for their use the best rooms therein and where they continued in comfort until their decease. This filial act ought of itself to cause his name and character to be held in high esteem and perpetually remembered by his descendants.

“A silver table spoon is now (1845) in the possession of Lot Edward Brewster, which belonged to his great grandmother, Lydia (Randall) Barstow. The initials of her maiden name—L. R.—are engraved on the handle of the spoon. It probably belonged to a set that was given to her by her father, Job Randall, at the time of her marriage as part of her dowry. The spoon came into the possession of her daughter, Lydia Barstow, and by her given to her son, Ichabod Brewster 2d, and by him given to his son, Lot Edward Brewster.”

Since the foregoing notes were written in 1845 there have been many changes. The farm does not now include the amount of land once owned and cultivated by Ichabod<sup>5</sup> Brewster and the house, at Exeter, Lebanon, is rapidly decaying, as shown in the accompanying illustration, which is a copy from a recent photograph. This is one of the oldest houses now standing in the State of Connecticut. It has been the home of William<sup>4</sup> Brewster and many of his descendants and has been owned and occupied in succession by Ichabod<sup>5</sup> Brewster, Ichabod<sup>6</sup> Brewster, William Wadsworth<sup>7</sup> Brewster and William Wadsworth<sup>8</sup> Brewster.

A table and chair, which, traditionally, were brought in the May-flower, in 1620, were removed from Duxbury to Lebanon, probably at the time of William<sup>4</sup> Brewster's removal to the home of his son Ichabod, and they remained in the homestead at Lebanon until recently.

Elisha Brewster removed from Duxbury, Mass., to Middletown, Conn., previous to 1742, and engaged extensively in mercantile business in the latter place. A map of Middletown, made soon after the Revolutionary War, represents his residence on the west side of Main street, a little north of what is now Court street, and he is mentioned as a tavern-keeper. His name appears as one of the consignees of the cargo on the brig Polly from the West Indies and bound for Middletown, which was captured by a British war vessel in September, 1775, and taken to Boston as a prize. He was made assistant commissioner December 17, 1776. It has not been ascertained that Captain Elisha Brewster had any command in the Revolutionary War, but he may have been a captain of a local train band and received the appointment from the Colonial Legislature, which was quite an honor in those days.

William Brewster removed from Preston to Canterbury after the birth of his first child and lived there until after his second marriage, which is recorded at Canterbury. He joined the church there in 1751. He owned land in Preston, which he sold to his father a few years after going to Canterbury. (See Preston Deeds, v. 349). In 1752 he bought land in Windham and moved there that year. From 1752 to 1786 there are many records of land transactions by William Brewster, and from these records it appears that he lost his property during the Revolutionary War. He was probably a farmer, evidently energetic and successful until long after middle life. He was an administrator of his father's estate. It is a tradition that after his second wife's death he lived with his daughters, Mrs. Ely and Mrs. Stebbins, at West Springfield, Mass., and he died while visiting in Vermont.

They lived at Canterbury. Amos Brewster served in the Revolutionary War and died of wounds received at Fort Mifflin, he being one of the heroic three hundred who defended the fort so valiantly when besieged by the British. The old New England valor was in Amos and he fell with his face toward the foe.

Charles Brewster removed from Lebanon to Salisbury, Conn., and in 1763 to Tinmouth, Vt. He was prominent in the early history of Vermont and during its struggle for independence. He was the first town clerk of Tinmouth; was a special judge of Rutland shire before the county was organized; was one of the first representatives to the State Legislature in 1778-9, and was a member of the convention at Windsor, Vt., July 2-8, 1777, which established a constitution and frame of government for the State of Vermont. He and his three sons served in the Revolutionary War, and at one time during the war he was appointed commissioner of sequestration for the State. His and his wife's names are the first on the church roll of the first church built at Tinmouth, in 1780, and he was one of the first deacons of that church.

Jonathan Strong and his wife, Mary, were admitted to communion to First Church of Lebanon from Second Church of Coventry, June 29, 1776. Jonathan bought land in Lebanon July, 1766, and in 1769, when he was spoken of as "late of Coventry." On March 14, 1783, he sold all his property, and he, his second wife and children removed from Lebanon to Jefferson County, N. Y., between 1783 and 1786.

He served in the Revolutionary War as a private in the 5th Regi-

* The facts that Jonathan Strong is mentioned in the Lebanon deeds as "late of Coventry"; that two of his children of his first wife, "Mary," were born at Coventry (Lebanon T. Rec., 295); that a child was named "Peter Brewster Strong"; that the death of "Mrs. Mary Strong, his Wife," is recorded at Lebanon; that later Jonathan Strong and his family removed from Lebanon to "a distance" (New York State), and many years previous to the death of Peter<sup>5</sup> Brewster; that the said Peter Brewster's will mentions his daughter Mary as deceased and that she had children who survived her (see p. 77), and that in the distribution of Peter Brewster's estate (recorded in Hebron District, iii, 16), there are these entries: "The children of said Mary being at a distance and their number and home unknown to us we cannot make the subdivision among them at this time if ever" and "Set out to the Heirs of Mary Strong Deceased. . . . 113 PATIENCE<sup>6</sup> BREWSTER (Peter<sup>5</sup>, William<sup>4</sup>, Benjamin<sup>3</sup>, Jonathan<sup>2</sup>, William<sup>1</sup>), married October 31, 1764, Captain ELIJAH CARPENTER, son of Benjamin and Rebecca (Smith) Carpenter of Coventry, Conn., born there, May 3, 1732. She died September 8, 1786.

They lived at Coventry, where Elijah Carpenter was a farmer. He served in the Revolutionary War as captain in the 2d Regiment of Connecticut.

Money. . . . The Situation of these Heirs is such that we are not able to make the Subdivision amongst them but find according to the will and your Honour's order to be the sum of Twenty one Dollars and we have set it out among all the Heirs of the said Mary Deceased," place the first wife of Jonathan Strong as the daughter of Peter<sup>5</sup> Brewster of Coventry.

The statement that Jonathan Strong's first wife, Mary, was a daughter of Samuel<sup>6</sup> Brewster (brother of said Peter), of Lebanon, Conn., is an error, as the Windham Probate Records, vi, 56, in 1798, refer to Samuel's daughter as "Miss Mary Brewster late of Lebanon decd." See p. 75.

In addition to the researches of the compiler of this book she was kindly assisted by Mrs. Lucy Hall Greenlaw of Boston, Mass., Mrs. Charles C. Welch of Denver, Colo., and Mr. Frank Allaben of New York City, in securing these records.

Timothy Brewster settled at Pawlet in 1784 and was licensed to preach by the Baptists of that town in 1791. He removed to Ellisburg in 1813 and became the pastor of the Baptist Church in that place. Later he joined the Disciples and continued preaching, and was known as "Elder Timothy Brewster." He was also a farmer and owned land in Ellisburg near that of his son Ephraim, who settled there in 1816, and his sons Elisha and William settled on adjoining farms, which gave the vicinity the name of "Brewster Settlement." The cemetery there, in which he and his wife rest, was presented by him to the community.

His son Ephraim narrated the following story regarding him. In early youth, upon a Sabbath afternoon, Timothy Brewster and a few ungodly friends were in an old sugar-house engaged in playing cards, when suddenly the pasteboards disappeared and the most careful search failed to find them. This was thought to be the work of the devil and the young men were seized with consternation, renounced their sinful lives and became good Christians, and Timothy Brewster was eventually led to enter the ministry of the Blessed Gospel.

He was a selectman of Pawlet in 1812-13, and served two short terms as a private in the Revolutionary War.

Timothy Brewster owned a dictionary which, traditionally, had belonged to his ancestors, William<sup>5</sup> Brewster and Nathaniel<sup>4</sup> Brewster, and probably William<sup>3</sup> Brewster and Love<sup>2</sup> Brewster. See Love Brewster's Inventory, p. 30, which includes three dictionaries.

The accompanying illustration is a facsimile of a page (the title page has been lost), and the lining of cover of the book. The latter has the autographs of four persons named William Brewster and those of Nathaniel Brewster, Timothy Brewster and A. J. (W. A. J.<sup>8</sup>) Brewster. Where it is marked (1) there is an autograph of * The greater part of the record of descendants of Timothy<sup>6</sup> Brewster was communicated by William E. R. Brewster, Gateway, Mont.

William Brewster, almost obliterated. The book is 8 inches high, 5 inches wide and  $2\frac{3}{4}$  inches thick. The earliest date printed in it is A. C. 782 and the latest is A. C. 1591.

This dictionary was owned by Timothy Brewster's descendants in a direct line, as follows: William<sup>7</sup> Brewster, William Andrew Jackson<sup>8</sup> Brewster and it is now the property of Morris William<sup>9</sup> Brewster of Milan, Washington, by virtue of his father's will. Mr. Brewster will be pleased to learn if there is proof that this book originally belonged to Love<sup>2</sup> Brewster, also who was the William Brewster whose autograph is marked (1).

1781, RUTH, daughter of Thomas DIMMOCK of Mansfield, Conn., born at Canterbury, Conn., November 5, 1759; died at Pawlet, Vt., September 29, 1829. She may have been his second wife. He died at Dresden, N. Y., October 2, 1827.

Between 1788 and 1790 Nathaniel Brewster removed from Becket, Mass., to Pawlet, Vt., where he owned a large farm. Later he owned a tract of timber land at Dresden, N. Y., on which there was a saw-mill, and the lumber from it was shipped to various points.
While actively engaged with his son, Nathaniel Orrin, who was then located on this land, in converting the timber into marketable product, he was seized with a fever and died there. His family lived at Pawlet at that time. Nathaniel Brewster became a Quaker late in life.

Truelove Brewster removed from Duxbury, Mass., to Connecticut and later to Albany, N. Y., and at the latter place he was a merchant until about 1798. At that time he went to New York City to purchase stock, a shipment of which was received at Albany, but as he was never heard from again it is supposed that he met with an unnatural death.

He served in the Revolutionary War; enlisted June 20, 1776, in Capt. William Weston's Company; discharged Nov. 19, 1776; again enlisted June 5, 1778, and he served in 1779 at Plympton.

They lived at Colchester, Bolton, Coventry and Hartford, Conn. Prince Brewster was one of the founders of Christ Episcopal Church of Hartford. The following is an extract from the history of that church: "March, 1792—John Morgan and Jacob Ogden agreed with Ebenezer Clark (as contractor) to build a church for said society. No formal laying of a corner stone was had, but tradition says that Prince Brewster, the mason, a member of the parish, said: 'I lay this stone for the foundation of an Episcopal Church and Sam Talcott and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.' "

Wetmore of Middletown, born there, May 24, 1752, and died there, December 1, 1798. She died July 5, 1827.

They lived in the Wetmore homestead at Middletown, which was built by Oliver Wetmore's father in 1746. The "North Parlor" stands as it was built—the same heavy beams are overhead in the large, low room, the same tiny panes of window glass are used, the curious inside shutters or blinds, the deep window seats, the buffet in the corner beside the huge stone chimney, and the high mantel, over which is painted on the wall a landscape, said to have been the handiwork of a traveling artist at the time the house was built. Doubtless, it was there that Sarah Brewster was welcomed when she came as a bride into the Wetmore family. Many have come and gone until the fifth generation of Sarah Brewster's descendants have been sheltered under this hospitable roof, and may the fine old mansion on the hill-side continue long to make a home for worthy descendants.

Oliver Wetmore "was a man of superior talents, intellectual attainments, sound judgment, very dignified, yet accessible to all, and unbounded benevolence was a prevailing trait." He was made deacon of the First Congregational Society of Middletown, March 4, 1784, and held the office until death. His wife, Sarah Brewster, "possessed much of the generous high mindedness of her noble ancestor."

They lived at Duxbury.

"At the age of twelve years Joshua Brewster shipped on board an American privateer at Plymouth and served through the Revolutionary War. Later he was in the state service on the war sloop Providence, and subsequently enlisted in the land service and was quartered at West Point. Having been captured in an engagement with the enemy, he was confined in the prison ship Jersey, where he suffered greatly from sickness and hard fare. [See footnote on page 245.] . . . It was during the second struggle with Great Britain, when the Duxbury coast was blockaded by the enemy's men-of-war, that Captain Brewster and his son, Job Ellis Brewster, were captured while fishing beyond the beach in a pinkie. The captors stripped the boat of all but one anchor and one sail, leaving the father to return home as best he could and carried the son off to Dartmoor prison. The wife and mother witnessed the capture from her attic window. In his later years, Captain Joshua Brewster was well known as a ship master and a rigger of vessels. He was greatly beloved and respected."

They lived at Windham until 1761-2, then at Pomfret, Conn., until 1775, when they removed to Cornish, N. H., and at the last town William Ripley was one of the early settlers and leading men. He was a farmer; also a justice of the peace and he often held court. William Ripley served in the Revolutionary War as adjutant in Colonel Jonathan Chase's Regiment and General Stark's Brigade of New Hampshire Militia.

Lydia Brewster's social standing and high reputation as an intellectual Christian woman are indicated by the fact that the sermon preached at her funeral was published, a rare occurrence in those days.

Jonathan Brewster lived at Middletown, Vt., as early as 1782; was elected a selectman at its first annual town meeting in 1785, and was a representative 1792-96. "He was the acknowledged leader in the formation of the Congregational Church and was its first deacon, and continued to act in that capacity until the infirmities of age prevented. If any member of the church was absent from the communion service Deacon Brewster would start out on Monday morning and learn the cause of it." The inscription on his gravestone at Middletown reads: "There remaineth a rest for the people of God."

* Leonard Robinson was one of twenty-two persons who comprised the first settlement of Bennington, Vt. He was a sergeant in the French War, and it is related that he was heard to pray for each man at whom he aimed in the battle of Bennington, saying: "God have mercy on his soul."

of Bennington, born at Hardwick, Mass., April 20, 1759; died at Cambridge, Vt., September 11, 1816. He died at Cambridge, in 1833, and he and his wife were buried there.

Jonah Brewster was living in Bennington in February, 1773. He settled at Cambridge about 1784 and took up the tract of land on the Lamsville river, which now constitutes the village of Jeffersonville, Vt. He was a leading citizen in wealth and benevolent influence, and he was one of the original members and a deacon of the First Congregational Church, which was organized in 1792. The Brewster River, at Center Village, Vt., was named in his honor. Five of their children settled at Cambridge.

* Sally Bradford was a des. of William Bradford of the Mayflower.

BRADFORD of Montville, born August 7, 1766; died at Norwich, Conn., December 11, 1788; married second, October 25, 1789, LUCY, daughter of Captain Benajah<sup>6</sup> * and Lucy (Backus) LEFFINGWELL of Norwich, born January 31, 1767; died at Norwich, June 27, 1797; married third, at Norwich, February 1, 1798, FANNY, daughter of Jonathan<sup>6</sup> † and Sarah<sup>6</sup> (Leffingwell) ‡ STARR of Norwich and widow of Pemberton BAKER, born at Norwich, October 15, 1764; died August 20-30, 1838. He died at Norwich, July 27, 1847 (g. s.), and he and his wives were buried there.

Seabury Brewster was a tanner and currier at Norwich. He served as deacon of the church in that town.

"At the commencement of the Revolutionary War he was enrolled as one of the 'Minute Men' of his country in the capacity of a sergeant. The company to which he was attached, at one time successfully resisted a hostile landing of the British fleet, the object of which was the destruction of the property of a prominent 'rebel.' . . . He was twice taken prisoner at sea by the British, and for a considerable time was detained on board one of the notorious prison ships at the Wallabout near the Navy Yard on Long Island. The sufferings of his imprisonment made so strong an impression on his mind, that on losing his reason near the close of his life, he seemed to imagine himself at times to be afflicted with some of those horrors.

"Soon after the close of the war he migrated to this town [Norwich] on foot, bringing his effects on his back in the true Pilgrim style, and pitched his habitation where he remained the rest of his days. For more than sixty years Mr. Brewster resided in this city, and acquired for himself an enviable reputation for industry, honesty, sobriety and those qualities of character which justly entitled him to the esteem and confidence of the community in which he lived."

- iv JUDGE LYMAN DENISON, b. July 31, 1832; d. at Danbury, Conn., Feb. 14, 1904; m. there, Jan. 1, 1868, Amelia, dau. of George W. Ives of Danbury, b. there, July 17, 1837. Residence, Danbury. Lyman D. Brewster was fitted for college at Williams Academy, Stockbridge, Mass.; entered Yale University in 1851 and was graduated in 1855, being the poet of his class. He traveled extensively abroad and upon his return studied law under the direction of Roger Averill of Danbury (who afterward became Lieutenant Governor of Connecticut), and was admitted to the bar in 1858. "Mr. Brewster early attained prominence at the bar. In 1868 he was judge of Probate and in 1870 the first judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Fairfield County, serving four years. In 1870, 1878 and 1879 he represented Danbury in the lower house of the State Legislature, serving two years on the judiciary committee, also as chairman of the committee on constitutional amendments, and as a member of the committee on a reformed civil procedure, whose work resulted in the drafting and adoption of the present Practice Act. In 1880 and 1881 he was a member of the State Senate and chairman of the judiciary committee. He confined himself closely to the practice of his profession after 1880, and became very successful as a trial lawyer. His most important case was the suit involving the will of Samuel J. Tilden of New York. Appearing for the heirs-at-law, he attacked the validity of the residuary bequest creating the 'Tilden Trust.' The Court of Appeals of New York, by a bare majority, held the bequest invalid, the prevailing opinion indicating that the conclusion of the court was based largely on Judge Brewster's brief, in the preparation of which the best part of four years was spent. Joseph H. Choate [ex-Ambassador to England] was associated with him in this case. . . . Judge Brewster was a charter member of the American Bar Association and until his illness in 1903 had attended all of its meetings. Since 1890 he had been chairman of the committee of the Association on Uniform State Laws, from 1896 to 1901 was president of the National Conference of Commissioners, on Uniformity of State Legislation, appointed by the Governors of the various States. He particularly gave up the last years of his life to this movement, and contributed more than any other one man to its success. In 1901 he wrote a series of exhaustive articles for the Yale Law Journal and Harvard Law Review, in defense of the Negotiable Instruments Act, which had been subjected to the criticism of Dean Ames of the Harvard Law School. He was an earnest advocate of reform in the business laws of the country, and gave forcible expression to his views in a paper on 'A Commercial Code,' which he read before the New York State Bar Association at Albany, in January, 1903."

There was one passage in the paper that summed up his ideas of law reform so concisely that it is given here:

"It would be a bitter reproach to our profession if the bar as a body failed to do their duty in this matter, failed to do their share in making the law of the land intelligible to the common people. Our Divine Master pronounced a woe on the lawyers of his time, not because they were lawyers. Far from it—Moses was the greatest of lawyers. Law-givers and codifiers and the prophets delighted in the law. His censure, with divine penetration to the heart of things, was that the lawyers laid burdens on men grievous to be borne, which they would not themselves touch with one of their fingers, and the weight of that burden," he added, "was that while building the tombs of the prophets their fathers had slain, they took away the key of knowledge. Far be it from the lawyers of a Christian civilization, favored more than those of any other country, living among people where every man is a voter and a possible law-maker, to be guilty of taking away or hiding the key of knowledge from such a free people."

"Immediately after reading this paper, which he had said would probably finish his work in behalf of uniformity, he was stricken with paralysis.

"A loving Christian character shone all through his life, and during his last year of rest and freedom from activity his life became a benediction to all who came in touch with him. He died in sleep at his home in Danbury.

"His short poems published at different times during his lifetime show a true sense of humor and a great depth of character. His poem 'Immortality' was said to be his favorite and was a representation of the true character of the man."

Judge Brewster had long been identified with the Danbury Relief Society, the Danbury Library, the Danbury Hospital and other benevolent institutions, and for many years held the office of school visitor. He was the governor of the Connecticut Society of Mayflower Descendants from 1900 to 1903 and was an assistant governor general of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants.

During six years' correspondence with the compiler, Judge Brewster repeatedly expressed his deep interest in her Brewster Genealogy and rendered valuable assistance.

He had no issue.

They lived at Worthington.

Elisha Brewster served in the Revolutionary War; "early enlisted in a regiment of Light Dragoons, for and during the war and served to its close as an officer. After its close he served as captain of cavalry and brigade quartermaster. At the time of Shay's Insurrection he volunteered his services to Genl. Shepard, at Springfield, and was appointed one of his aids on that memorable occasion. Subsequently he was employed by the Government to take the oath of the insurgents for their allegiance to the Commonwealth. While in the army he experienced many hard fought battles, always charging into the very midst of the contest with an impetuosity and courage which no prudence could restrain. He was a fine looking officer, and in daring and horsemanship no one excelled him in the army. As a civilian he retained that dignity and courtesy which so often mark the officers of the army, and always bore with him, in the intercourse with his fellow-men, that affability and gentlemanly feeling which so eminently characterized his younger brother, Mr. Jonah Brewster. He held various offices of trust in the town and was chosen to represent its interests in the General Court in 1806."

They lived at "White Stone Lodge," Worthington.

"Soon after Jonathan Brewster's age had entitled him to take a practical part in the business of the town he was chosen to fill the most important offices in its gift. Having a good command of language and being a sound reasoner he was often appointed by the town to advocate its cause in differences with other towns. Before the Board of County Commissioners he presented the interests of the town seldom without success. In town meetings, as chairman, he presided with confidence and dignity; as a public speaker, though impulsive and sometimes passionate, he was never listened to without attention and respect. At seven different times he represented the town in the General Court, where he was respected for his ability and often honored by being appointed as chairman upon important committees. He belonged to the Board of Selectmen a number of years and held important town trusts till near the time of his death. He was firm and unchangeable and of strong prejudices and when once he had examined a subject and taken his position in regard to it no motives could influence, no arguments persuade him to relinquish it. He was loved by the poor for his kindness and respected by the rich for his integrity."

They removed from Windham, Conn., to New York State in 1789, where William Webb was a sturdy pioneer, living successively at Hoosick Falls, Floyd and Perch River.

William Webb served in the Revolutionary War, having enlisted on the frigate Trumbull in 1777. He was taken prisoner by the British and confined on the notorious prison ship Jersey* at the Wallabout on Long Island in the winter of 1779-80, and suffered indescribable horrors. When a ship, on which he was a captive, was burning he assisted in removing sick prisoners, and while in the hold searching for others every man and boat left and he was forced to escape on a cake of floating ice. The Tories soon picked him up and drove him back to the vessel with blows from their boat-hooks, declaring they would "burn the rebel," and they never knew that they had failed. The ship was now in full blaze, but on the opposite side a man, in a skiff, took him off and conveyed him to another ship, where he remained with the other prisoners until he was exchanged.

died in Louisiana, August 18, 1852. He died at Washington, D. C., July 9, 1850, and was buried near Louisville, Ky.

"In 1808 Zachary Taylor was appointed a lieutenant of infantry and in 1810 promoted to captain. In 1812 he was appointed to the command of Fort Harrison, near the present city of Terre Haute, Ind., which he defended with his troops from the attack of a large force of Indians, for which he was brevetted major. He served in the Black Hawk War of 1832, and in 1837 was given full command in Florida, where he defeated the Indians in the battle of Okechobee, thereby putting an end to the Indian War. In 1840 he was given command in the Southwest. When Texas was annexed he marched to Corpus Christi. In 1846 he was ordered to the Rio Grande, the Mexican invasion having been already planned. He established a camp opposite Matamoras. The Mexicans claimed that the Nueces was the actual Texas boundary, and the Mexican commander ordered Taylor to withdraw. Acting under orders from his government, he refused. Fearing his base of supplies at Point Isabel would be cut off, Taylor marched for that place. On the way he was attacked, and won the two victories of Palo Alto and Resaca de la Palma, on two successive days. Having been ordered to send his best troops to reinforce General Scott, he won the victory of Buena Vista, nevertheless, in 1847, with a force much inferior to the enemy's."

This victory created the greatest enthusiasm, and General Taylor, popularly called "Old Rough and Ready," was nominated in 1848, by the Whig party for the presidency, and triumphantly elected the twelfth President of the United States. He was inaugurated March 4, 1849, and died sixteen months later.

Peru), Mass., May 27, 1781, JERUSHA, daughter of Henry * and Mary (Langdon) BADGER of Partridgefield, born there, September 9, 1759; died at Lenox, Mass., November 21, 1841. He died at Becket, Mass., February 15, 1812.

Oliver Brewster was the first physician of Becket. He was a surgeon in the Revolutionary War in a regiment from Berkshire, and was at Stone Arabia, N. Y., under Colonel John Brown of Pittsfield, Mass., in 1780.

“His labors in his profession were indefatigably faithful and successful. In most instances, particularly in acute diseases, his practice was eminently successful. Beneficence was a well known trait in his character. This was experienced by his patients to whom, when poor, he was not only a physician but a father, relieving their wants to the extent of his ability. His professional charges were remarkably moderate and his collection of them from persons of humble means—if collected at all—was in the most favorable way possible. His worldly prosperity was due to his industry and economy of time. Decision and determination were indeed characteristics of the man. In his family his fidelity as a Christian father was remarkable and exemplary. He stood as a pillar in the church, in which he was deacon.”

The accompanying illustration was the home of Dr. Oliver Brewster at Becket, probably built by him, and in 1787, as that year is marked on the chimney. It is said to have been the finest house in Becket in its day. It is still standing and in good condition.

In 1809 Elias Brewster settled at Mexico, Oswego Co., N. Y., where he lived until his decease. "During most of that time he held a public office, as town clerk, justice of the peace, supervisor, county treasurer, county judge and member of the Assembly. All of these offices he filled with ability, honesty and integrity. He was an easy and gifted public speaker and could present his thoughts with so much clearness, logic and pathos as to carry an audience to the same concluding point where he arrived. . . . He united with the First Presbyterian Church of Mexico in 1832 and soon after was chosen a ruling elder, which office he held until death, performing his duties in a faithful and satisfactory manner. . . . He was a judicious, exemplary and useful Christian man."

Stephen Buckingham was a farmer and a landed proprietor at Columbia. Late in life Mrs. Buckingham lived with her sons at Poughkeepsie.

Stephen Buckingham served three years in the Revolutionary War. "He was sent to France in a cartel to exchange prisoners; was shipwrecked in the Bay of Biscay, and was absent about a year."

Children, born at Columbia:

i STEPHEN MADISON<sup>8</sup>, b. July 12, 1808; d. at Poughkeepsie, Dec. 1, 1887; m. at Hartford, Conn., Feb. 12, 1868, Catherine Sarah Morgan of Hartford, who d. at Poughkeepsie, Dec. 15, 1897. In early life Stephen Buckingham was employed by his uncle, Lot Edward Brewster, at Brooklyn, N. Y. Later he engaged in mercantile pursuits in New York City, then, "having formed an advantageous business connection, went to England, where he remained fifteen years and amassed a fortune. Upon retiring he traveled extensively, visiting Egypt, Syria, Nubia and adjacent countries, returning to his native country in 1850, and until his death resided at Rosebank, Poughkeepsie. During the period of his active business life he crossed the Atlantic over twenty times, several passages having been made in the depth of winter in sailing packets, before the establishment of the Cunard line of steamers. The last twenty years of his life he gave much of his time and attention to Vassar Female College and to several other important trusts committed to him." He gave liberally for the support of various religious, educational and charitable institutions. s. p.

City, Jan. 21, 1818; d. at Poughkeepsie, Jan. 26, 1848. "He prepared for college at Colchester, Conn., entered Trinity Coll., in 1829, with a view to the ministry in the Episcopal church. His health failing his studies were remitted, but again resuming them, he was at length obliged to make a voyage to the Mediterranean. After a third attempt he was compelled to relinquish his literary pursuits, and made a second voyage to Europe. Subsequently he engaged in mercantile life there and in New York City, where he resided until he removed to Poughkeepsie, in 1849. For many years he devoted much of his time to the public schools of that city and to other educational interests generally." Chn., 1-3 b. at N. Y. City, 4 Brooklyn:

Y., April 12, 1864. She died at Rochester, November 16, 1837.

Dr. Simon Hunt practiced medicine at Gilead, Hebron, Conn., until 1811, when he and his wife removed to Rochester, N. Y., and became early pioneers of that town. "Notwithstanding the exposures incident to a pioneer physician's life in swamps and forests he continued in the practice of his professional duties with unusual activity during a period of fifty-three years and until within a few months of his death. Of a retiring disposition he shrank from that prominence in public life to which he might easily have risen, preferring the quiet and unostentatious practice of the profession he loved and adorned. Still he was widely known and highly appreciated, not merely for his professional character but also for those qualities of mind and heart which endeared him to his intimate friends."

He was a surgeon in the War of 1812, being in active duty at Fort Erie, Lundy's Lane and other battles.

* Bernard Hubley, Jr., was son of Bernard Hubley, Sr., the latter b. in Germany, Oct. 18, 1719, and came to this country in 1732 with his father, a French Huguenot, whose family then consisted of two sons, Bernard, Sr., and Michael, and a daughter, and settled at Lancaster, Pa. The name Hubley was formerly spelled "Oublie."

Bernard Hubley, Jr., was b. at Lancaster, July 8, 1754; d. at Philadelphia, Pa., March, 1810; m. at Northumberland, Pa., June 28, 1790, Elizabeth, dau. of John and Tamer (Rich) McCalla, she b. at Doylestown, Pa., Apr. 7, 1769; d. at Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 12, 1842. Bernard Hubley, Jr., was an officer in the Revolutionary War, and owing to wounds received in battle was retired Jan. 1, 1781. Later he was appointed lieutenant and then brigade inspector of the Militia of Northumberland County, Pa., which office he held for many years. He was a member of the Pennsylvania State Society of the Cincinnati.

Lot E. Brewster was born in the old homestead at Lebanon, Conn., and lived there until manhood. He derived his first name from his grandfather's brother, Dr. Lot Brewster, and was baptized "Lot Edward" at Christ Episcopal Church, Hartford, Conn., May 7, 1812. There is a tradition that he attended a New England college, but it is possible that he was a pupil at Bacon Academy, Colchester, Conn., and later continued his studies. He was a scholarly man and spoke the French language fluently. After teaching school for a short time in the vicinity of Lebanon he was employed by his brother-in-law, Nathan Morgan, a prominent merchant at Hartford, who was engaged in the West India trade, and he remained with him for several years. Previous to his marriage Mr. Brewster removed to Brooklyn, N. Y., where he was a merchant until 1831, when he with his wife and two children removed to Cincinnati, and was a merchant there for many years. "Shortly after becoming a resident he was identified with the interests of Cincinnati, and was highly respected as an upright and useful citizen and an enterprising and efficient business man. For many years he was a member of the City Council and presided over that body [an honor in those days], and the city is largely indebted to the measures he organized and to the indefatigable and earnest spirit and energy with which he habitually discharged his duties."

Mr. Brewster was one of the founders and the senior warden of Grace Episcopal Church at Cincinnati. The meeting for its organization and many of the services, previous to the erection of the church edifice,* were held at his residence.

In 1845 Mr. Brewster was elected a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society at Boston, Mass. He was a charter member of the New England Society of Cincinnati, "an institution to which he, from its organization, devoted much of his zeal," and served in various offices, being president at his decease.

"Lot E. Brewster was recognized as a worthy representative of his noble and illustrious ancestor, Elder William Brewster." It was his manuscript which led his granddaughter to compile this Brewster Genealogy. See Preface.

The accompanying portrait is reproduced from a water color, painted by Pariser, in New York City, May 1, 1816, and is the only portrait extant of Lot Edward Brewster.

A. at same coll., delivering the master's oration, 1854; same degree was conferred upon him by Yale Coll., 1879, and ten years later Trinity Coll. made him a Doctor of Laws. He was admitted to the bar in 1855, and in April of same year was called to the position of librarian of the State of Connecticut, which he held until his decease. His life work was done as State librarian or in historical and legal studies connected with his duties there, and in that capacity he served the State for forty-five years, a longer time than any other official of either the Colony or the State of Connecticut with the exception of George Wyllys, who was the secretary of the Colony and the State from 1734 to 1794. While in his charge the State Library was made one of the best collections of Law Reports and Statute Law in the land. He edited the New Haven Colony Records, 1638-1665, and the Connecticut Colonial Records. The value of these publications, sixteen large octavo volumes, is beyond calculation, and the work has been so carefully done that it is hardly possible that any part of it will need to be done again. Some of his other publications are Goodwin's Genealogical Notes, edited in 1856, Annals of Christ Church, Hartford, to 1828, and communications addressed to the Courant and other journals. The results of a large part of his investigations remain unpublished." He was a member of many historical societies.

They removed from Middletown to Burlington, Conn., thence to New York City and thence returned to Middletown, where John P. Treadwell engaged in mercantile pursuits.

They were married in the "North Parlor" of the Wetmore homestead. Pleasant memories have been passed down of that wedding day and the loveliness of the bride. Mrs. Treadwell was tall and stately, after the manner of her family, and her strong character, intelligence and brilliant conversational powers increased with the years.

In 1815 John Humphrey purchased a farm along "The West Running Brook" in Derry (which is a portion of the larger tract called Londonderry), at the spot where, in 1719, the sixteen Scotch-Irish pioneers spent the first winter in a "common house" and planted a "common field" and then brought their families from Newburyport, Mass. In 1818 he was chosen ruling elder in the First Church of Derry and for more than fifty years he fulfilled the duties of the office, a part of which time he was also Sabbath-school superintendent. He was a joiner and housebuilder by trade, and his education was obtained at the schools in Derry and by his own exertions. He was a great lover of books, always keeping in touch with the standard works of the day, and enjoyed the reading of physics, theological works and especially the Bible. He was a devoted and exemplary Christian, and Sabbath desecrations and neglect of the sanctuary he regarded as heinous sins. He was a man of great weight of character, of perfect self command and of imposing presence, being over six feet in height. Because of his sound practical judgment his opinion was repeatedly sought for deciding many important questions, and he was always accessible to the unfortunate, giving his time and personal help.

Rebecca Brewster possessed great vitality, and of a nervous temperament her life was one of high tension. Her sprightly sayings and strong, sensible views of life gave her prominence in the community. The household furnishing was largely the product of her own spinning and weaving for "she sought wool and flax and worked willingly with her hands, looking well to the ways of her household and eating not the bread of idleness." Married at thirty-five, within six years four sons were born, two of whom she outfitted for college and theological seminary. With scarce any outside help, she carried on her household affairs to the age of ninety-two, and she led a class of ladies in the Sabbath-school until she was eighty-five years of age.

They lived at Preston. Moses Hillard was a sea captain, an adventurous, energetic man of no small fame in his day. He was master of the ship that brought to America the first news of the burning of Moscow.

“It is an interesting fact, . . . that when Napoleon, after his overthrow at Waterloo, thought of flying to this country, friends of his sought and were pledged the aid of Captain Hillard, then in France, in carrying out the design. It was fully arranged between him and them that the emperor should be concealed in a water cask on his vessel's deck and so escape through the English fleet, but for some reason he was not conveyed on board.”

Soon after the death of his father James Brewster apprenticed himself as a mechanic, and by his skill and high principle won the esteem of his employer. In 1809 Mr. Brewster started for New York to seek his fortune, but, while passing through New Haven, he strolled into a carriage shop, accepted an engagement which was offered him and thus, by an apparent accident, began a career which, for more than a half century was identified with the progress of the Elm City. He became, as was said at his death, "the pioneer of the carriage business."

Although Mr. Brewster had no schooling in his youth, save that of a common school, he was always deeply interested in educational matters. He founded the Mechanics' Institute of New Haven, providing for courses of popular lectures on science, etc., by Professor Benjamin Silliman and others of the faculty of Yale College. Thus he anticipated the principles of modern "University Extension." He also purchased and presented to Yale College a Mineralogical Cabinet; built and endowed the New Haven Orphan Asylum, at a cost of over $20,000, and, moreover, he made himself the personal friend of all the children in the institution. When the Civil War broke out he was an ardent supporter of the Union and fitted out, at his own expense, a company of volunteers. Mr. Brewster furnished most of the funds for publishing the book Chief of the Pilgrims, or Life and Time of William Brewster. He was one of the first directors of the New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company and for its success he risked nearly his entire fortune. He served one term as mayor of New Haven.

During the hours of the funeral services of Mr. Brewster places of business were closed by common consent and citizens displayed their flags at half-mast. The New Haven Palladium of November 26, 1866, at the close of a long article upon his funeral obsequies, says: "Thus has gone to rest one of the best citizens New Haven or any other city ever had. 'He, being dead, yet speaketh, his deeds do follow him.' Hundreds about our city called him blessed, and a hundred households are happier and better to-day for his having lived. The public blessings, which he was instrumental in obtaining, are lasting mementos to his worth—more enduring than tablets of stone or graven memorials of ever-during brass."

New York City and Cazenovia. In 1849 Mr. Brewster went to California, where he engaged in mercantile and other western enterprises for twenty-five years, and amassed a fortune. In 1874 he returned East to reside permanently, making his home in New York City. Some of the greatest financial movements were more or less the work of his genius. He was prominently identified with the building of the elevated railways of New York City and was also a leader in many large railroad transactions, one of the most important being the reorganization of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha railroads. At the time of his death he was vice president of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company and a heavy stockholder and director in the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railway Company, the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company and other large enterprises. He was also a director in the International Navigation Company—owner of the American line of steamers. He was a member of the Metropolitan, Union League and Riding Clubs, the New England Society, American Museum of Natural History and of the American Geographical Society. Mr. Brewster inherited many of the noblest traits of his ancestors and he illustrated by precept and example the virtues which have characterized the best of the New England race, viz., integrity, perseverance, benevolence, deep religious feeling, courage of convictions, and love of letters, art and nature. In 1891 he erected a handsome summer residence at the foot of Cazenovia Lake, N. Y., and named it "Scrooby," in honor of the ancestral English manor house of Elder William Brewster. Chn., 4, 7 b. at Cazenovia, 5 New York, 6 Irvington, N. Y.:

In early days Uriah Bartlett, Jr., owned and sailed, with his brother, Peleg Bartlett, a vessel called the Harmony. He was the only one of his father's twelve children who resided in his native town, Kingston. Here he lived until ninety-two years of age, when failing strength induced him to make his home with his son, Dr. Frederic W. Bartlett, at Buffalo, N. Y., at whose home he died, in his ninety-fifth year.

Mr. Bartlett was the authority for the whole town of Kingston on matters occurring during nearly a century, and the information procured from him in practically every instance is verified by the records. As a boy he had talked with the venerable Ebenezer Cobb of that town, who was born in 1694 and died in 1801, aged one hundred and seven years and eight months, and who told him that in his own boyhood he had known Peregrine White, who was born on the Mayflower, in 1620, and died in 1704.

The grave of Mr. Bartlett is decorated on Memorial Day by the G. A. R. Post at Kingston, as he was one of the military guard at the Gurnet in Plymouth Harbor in the War of 1812, when the Atlantic coast was blockaded by the British. In February, 1812, he was returning from the South on a merchantship which, with four other vessels, was captured by the British, but the prisoners were given one vessel and released.

bury), Mass., July 30, 1754; died at Cornish, November 28, 1841. She died at Cornish, October 15, 1841.

Before the marriage of James Wellman, Jr., he went into the wild woods in the northern part of Cornish, and single-handed cleared off the mighty primeval forest and created for himself a large and fruitful farm. This wild land was given to him by his father and was near that which William Ripley (later his father-in-law) had bought a few years before, and upon which he and his family were living at the time of his daughter Alethea's marriage.

James Wellman, Jr., served in the Revolutionary War in 1776-7.

1818, and died there, April 30, 1902. He died at Ledyard, April 23, 1902, in his 86th year, and he and his wife were buried in the Brewster Cemetery.

John Brewster lived his entire life in the old Israel Morgan homestead at Ledyard. He was a farmer and dealt largely in wool. He was a member of the Connecticut Legislature, 1847-1851, 1860, 1878, 1885, and 1886; served as judge of Probate at Ledyard in 1881, president of the Merchants Bank and vice president and trustee of the Norwich Savings Society. He was captain of the Rifle Company of Groton and Stonington, Conn., 1834-1844.

Captain Brewster was a member of the committee to raise a fund to erect the Jonathan<sup>2</sup> Brewster monument and to build a wall around the Brewster Cemetery at Brewster's Neck, which were completed in 1855. His daughter, Mrs. Lewis, raised another fund in 1903, with which the wall was rebuilt and a small iron gate added, and the cemetery is now in good condition. See pages 13-14.

Horace Brewster was a farmer at Blenheim, now South Gilboa.

Children, born at Blenheim:

- i JULIA ELMA<sup>9</sup>, b. Aug. 6, 1819; d. at Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 3, 1902; m. at Blenheim, Sept. 29, 1844, Joseph Keasbey Brick, son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Smith) Brick of Salem Co., N. J., b. at Woodstown, N. J., July 20, 1812; d. at Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 7, 1867. Residence Brooklyn.

Joseph K. Brick was a civil engineer. "He won a lasting name for himself in connection with the inauguration of many public improvements, including the introduction of gas and water. He also built the first gas works used in Buffalo and Philadelphia, and constructed the waterworks in Savannah, Ga., and long before his death he became one of the leading men in the public life of Brooklyn.

"Bereft in early life of her husband and sons, Mrs. Brick had large responsibilities thrust upon her in the conduct and final settlement of the interests which her husband had built up, and in the disposition of the ample fortune which fell to her management. That she managed her trust wisely and beneficently many, if not most, of the charitable institutions of Brooklyn can testify, to whose current expenses and permanent endowment she contributed with generous hand. She has written her name indelibly in the life of the Brooklyn City Mission, the Seney, the Memorial, the Maternity, and other hospitals, the Diet Dispensary, the Home for Aged Colored People, and many other beautiful charities. Her latest and perhaps her greatest work was the founding of the Joseph K. Brick Agricultural, Industrial and Normal School for Colored Boys and Girls, near Enfield, N. C. To this institution she gave eleven hundred acres of land and an outfit of substantial, commodious and well equipped buildings, and during the last months of her life she was engaged in erecting an additional dormitory for boys, and, with the assistance of a sympathetic friend, a beautiful chapel for the use of the institution.

"Mrs. Brick was for many years a faithful member and liberal supporter of the Clinton Avenue Congregational Church, in whose missionary work she always took an active and prominent part. A woman of rare simplicity and common sense, indomitable courage, fine feeling, unselfish spirit, she passed away full of years and honor, leaving as the richest legacy of all an illustrious example of faith, love and good works."

Theron D. Brewster attended the academy at Westfield, Conn. In 1835 he located at Peru, Ill., commenced trading in real estate, and the same year he laid out "Ninawa Addition" to the city of Peru. From 1843-46 he engaged in mercantile business, and "then began dealing in grain, and built a large warehouse on the bank of the Illinois River, where he carried on an extensive business. . . . At the end of five years he rented his warehouse and engaged in the dry-goods business for several years. In 1856 he sank the Peru Coal shaft, which was owned by a stock company, of which Mr. Brewster was president, and the shaft was worked about seventeen years. He then became connected with the Peru Plow Company, which he managed until 1882, when it was organized as a stock company, and Mr. Brewster was one of the principal stockholders. After the organization of this company he retired from active business.

"Mr. Brewster served as the first mayor of Peru, being elected in 1851, and was re-elected in 1852 and 1854. He was treasurer of the School Board for eight years and in 1838 was town trustee. He held the office of president of the old Peru Bank during its entire existence—from 1853 to 1880. He was one of the first directors of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Company; was a member of the executive committee and one of the principal men in working up the enterprise."

In 1841 Mr. Brewster presented a stone church to the Presbyterian congregation at Peru, which, in 1853, changed to Congregational, and he was a liberal supporter of that church.

What is known as the "Ninawa Addition," upon which most of the business part of Peru is now situated, was originally owned by Lyman D.<sup>7</sup> Brewster (uncle of Theron D.), Theron D. Brewster, Pelatiah Brewster,* Calvin Brewster,* and four others.

Osmyn Brewster was apprenticed in 1811 to Samuel T. Armstrong, a printer and publisher at Boston, and when of age he and Uriel Crocker became Mr. Armstrong's partners. In 1825 Mr. Armstrong retired, and the business was continued for nearly sixty years under the firm name of Crocker and Brewster, printers and publishers. "One of the works which they published and which was undertaken while they were yet partners with Mr. Armstrong, was Scott's Family Bible, in six volumes, the largest work which had then ever been stereotyped in America. It was a most successful undertaking and the circulation was immense."

Ezra Brewster removed to Colwell's Manor or Sixth Concession, Canada, in 1807. As he was about to be pressed into the British Army in the War of 1812, he, with his wife and children, left Canada for Vermont, in a sleigh, escaping three guards, who were stationed along the line to Vermont. He settled his family on a farm in Monroe County, N. Y., and in 1813 enlisted at Scottsville, N. Y., as a private, and was in the battles of Fort Erie and Black Rock. For his services he received from the Government, in 1850, a military warrant for forty acres of land in Genesee County, Mich. In 1824 he settled in Michigan, where he was a farmer and land locator of Government lands in the Territory of Michigan, his last residence being at Oakland, Oakland County, Mich.
